Marchand 'Given $25,000'

TORONTO — A $25,000 payment was made in 1972 to the re-election campaign of Jean Marchand, then federal transport minister, after the federal government awarded a $2.7-million contract for dredging near Trois-Rivieres, Que., a former dredging company president testified Monday.

Prosecution witness Horace Grant Rindress, former president of J. P. Porter Co. Ltd., Montreal, said he issued the cheque on the instructions of Porter director Bruno Desjardins.

Rindress was testifying under the protection of the Canada Evidence Act which prevents testimony he gives being used against him in any future court proceedings.

Eleven executives and nine companies are charged with defrauding the federal and Ontario governments and the Hamilton and Toronto harbor commissioners of about $4.2 million.

Jobless Figure Tops a Million For First Time

OTTAWA (CP) — Government figures showing that unemployment in February smashed the one-million barrier for the first time brought renewed opposition demands today for swift action to create jobs.

Statistics Canada, in its regular monthly report on the labor force, said there were 1,007,000 actual unemployed last month, up from 991,000 in January and 932,000 in February last year.

But the jobless rate, adjusted to take seasonal changes in the work force into account, stood at 8.3 per cent. That was the same as January but up from eight per cent in February, 1977.

British Columbia's rate fell to 8.4 per cent from 8.7 per cent.

Conservative Progressive finance critic Sinclair Stevens called for a new budget, saying the country cannot tolerate one million out of work. His call was echoed by James McGrath (PC—St. John's East), who said the jobless have a better chance of winning a lottery prize than finding work.

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, termed the official one-million mark a "symbolic turning-point." But he held out no hope the government will act now.

Canadian Labor Congress president Joe Morris called for a budget which aims at creating jobs in the public sector.

Employment Minister Bud Cullen said the breaking of the one-million barrier was not unanticipated.

Government incentives which went into effect Jan. 1 and which were aimed at spurring economic recovery, had not yet had an impact, he said.

The unemployment rate went up in four provinces last month and declined in six.

Despite a decrease in its seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate to 10.9 per cent from 11.4 per cent in January, Quebec remained the province with the largest total of unemployed. There were 342,000 unemployed compared with 339,000 in January.

Newfoundland kept its status as the province with the highest jobless rate at 15.8 per cent. This was a decrease from 16 per cent in January.

There was a substantial decline of 2.5 per cent in the jobless rate for Prince Edward Island. The February rate was 8.2 per cent.

In Nova Scotia, the jobless rate fell to 10.3 per cent from 10.7 per cent in January but in New Brunswick, unemployment rose to 13.4 per cent last month from 12.7 per cent in January.

Ontario's unemployment rate rose by one-tenth of one per cent to seven per cent and the actual number of jobless increased to 326,000 from 316,000 in January.

Unemployment rose in Manitoba to 6.5 per cent from 6.2 per cent but dropped in Saskatchewan to 5.1 per cent from 5.4 per cent.

Alberta, despite an increase in its unemployment rate to 5.1 per cent from 4.6 per cent, remained the province with the lowest jobless rate.

Although opposition spokesmen have been saying for months that there are at least one million unemployed, it is the first time official Statistics Canada estimates have gone over that barrier. Critics have said the federal agency's labor force survey leaves out many unemployed.

Between February, 1977, and February, 1978, today's figures show there were 362,000 new entrants into the labor force but only 267,000 new jobs created, leaving a net growth in unemployment of 95,000.

The February figures show that for the second month in succession unemployment has moderated. There was a steady rise in the jobless rate between May and December last year to a peak of 8.5 per cent.

In January, the jobless rate fell to 8.3 per cent, the first decline in months.

In the U.S., the February unemployment rate was 6.1 per cent last month, the lowest figure since October, 1974.

JAIL RIOT KILLS 44

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Several hundred prisoners clashed with police at Argentina's largest prison today and authorities said 44 persons were killed and scores more injured in the worst prison riots on record.

The federal penitentiary service said all the dead were non-political prisoners killed by smoke inhalation or burns after rioters set fire to bedding, turning their cellblock into an inferno.

Feds Eye Cowichan Showdown

FISH WERE FREE for the asking in Vancouver Monday night after truck spilled nearly 6.6 tons at a downtown intersection. People brought boxes, bags and buckets to carry away as much as they could handle. When the crowd thinned, a front-end loader was brought in to clean up the rest of the mess.

The federal government's newly beefed-up Fisheries Act could get its first major test on the West Coast on the Cowichan estuary.

In a telegram to the provincial government, federal Fisheries Minister Romeo Leblanc states that he prefers co-operation to confrontation, but if industry fails to work with the government in finding environmental solutions then Bill C-38 will be applied to any estuary developments that threaten fish habitat.

Last year the federal government pushed through legislative amendments that greatly expanded the definition of fish and gave fisheries officials more power to protect fish habitats. The forest industry was largely opposed to the changes as too severe and restrictive.

One of the controversial amendments states: "No person shall carry on any work or undertaking that results in the harmful alteration, disruption or destruction of fish habitat."

The act gives the government the power to halt any project it considers damaging to the fishery and to order any protective amendments it feels necessary.

In his telegram, Leblanc states that "approval of any plans submitted by the wood processing and handling industry will be subject to the impiementation of measures designed to mitigate negative impacts to the fisheries resources and biological productivity of B.C. estuaries, and the destructive impacts of such activities will be strongly opposed within the extent of my legislative authority."

Leblanc says that the protection of fish habitat is vital.

"Recent studies concerning the importance of B.C. estuaries for the rearing of fish, particularly juvenile Pacific salmon, and the destructive impact of log storage on fish habitat and food organisms conducted in the American Northwest, all point to the need for a strengthened policy . . ."

He said that "my position

Cabinet Review Of Bus Strike

The provincial cabinet plans to review the effect of the B.C. Hydro bus strike Thursday.

In the meantime, commuters here in Victoria and Vancouver are just going to have to do without bus service.

Labor Minister Allan Williams says he will try and determine what effect the strike by 3,500 transit workers is having on B.C. Hydro's operations and make a recommendation to Thursday's regular cabinet meeting as to whether the government will invoke sections of the Essential Services Disputes Act.

The act allows the government to order the Labor Relations Board to designate certain services as essential and order striking employees back to work. The cabinet can also impose a 90-day cooling-off period.

Meanwhile, aside from bus users who have had to resort to using cars, hitch-hiking or walking, about 3,500 Hydro employees in three other unions not on strike are feel-

Daring Dutch Marines' Assault Frees 70 Without Loss of Life

ASSEN, Netherlands (UPI) — Dutch Marines today attacked a government building and freed about 70 hostages held by Moluccan extremists without loss of life, a government spokesman said.

The marines launched their assault shortly after the passing of an 8 a.m. EST deadline set by a Moluccan "suicide commando squad" that threatened to kill hostages unless authorities met their demands for an escape plane for themselves and 21 South Moluccan colleagues jailed for previous attacks.

A spokesman said the troops acted because authorities were faced with "clear evidence" a bloodbath was about to begin.

A government spokesman said no lives were lost in the lightning action. He said three Moluccan terrorists were arrested.

One person was seriously injured and three slightly injured, the spokesman added.

The spokesman said an earlier report that one person was killed during the attack was erroneous. But he confirmed the death of a woman who had been tossed out of a window the previous day and left without help throughout the night. The gunmen refused to allow anyone to come to her aid.

The marines captured three Moluccans "and we think we've got them all," the spokesman added.

Authorities ordered the assault "because we had clear evidence the Moluccans intended to carry out their threat" to murder hostages, Justice Ministry spokesman Willem Van Leeuwen said.

The terrorists said they would start killing hostages at 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EST) unless their demand for a getaway plane for themselves and 21 imprisoned comrades was met by that time. The Moluccans also demanded a $13 million ransom.

It was the third such siege

Police Raiders Seek M-B Pay-Off Evidence

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the Vancouver RCMP commercial crime sections have raided four banks, two homes, a law office and a chartered accountants firm seeking possible evidence of secret commissions paid to employees at the MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. wood preserving division in nearby New Westminster, Inspector Keith Dane, said Monday.

Dane, who headed the nine-month long investigation, said financial and corporate records were seized March 8 by about a dozen members of the commercial crime section armed with search warrants.

It was the second time in six months RCMP have been asked by MacMillan Bloedel to investigate the possibility of secret commissions paid to employees in company divisions.

Dane said all the places raided by police March 8 are located in Vancouver but he would not elaborate.

Gerry Haslam, public relations director for MacMillan Bloedel, confirmed Monday that the investigation was initiated by the company about nine months ago.

Dane said the company voiced concerns "about secret commissions being accepted by employees of theirs" at the wood preserving division.

No charges have been laid at this time, said Dane, adding that the investigation will continue. He said police will be analysing the material they seized.

Last October MacMillan Bloedel said that it had asked RCMP to investigate certain rumors concerning MB's log trading division.

Shift Plan Infuriating Police

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Victoria city's police union, which says it is frustrated and dissatisfied with the way the force is being run, is now up in arms over a new shift proposal.

Police union president Sgt. Brian Bailey says the proposal submitted last week by the police board is an insult.

He said the union has called a special meeting tonight to discuss the arrangement that would have officers working 12-hour rather than eight-hour shifts.

Bailey said he anticipates strong criticism of the board and department officials who appear oblivious to what many officers feel is a drastic decline in morale on the force.

"I expect some extremely serious propositions may be suggested (by members of the union) on what action we should take," Bailey said.

Although the union has been fighting for a 12-hour shift system since last November there are a number of problems with the board's proposal, Bailey said. He declined to elaborate.

Twelve-hour shifts are now being worked by virtually all police departments in the Greater Victoria area.

Individual officers, who asked not to be identified, have pointed to a larger and much more serious problem on the force which could surface at tonight's meeting.

Said one officer: "Our biggest beef really is management style and the fact the police department hasn't any long-term objectives. None of us know where we're going."

Another policeman said officers' lives are often placed in serious jeopardy because of faulty or antiquated equipment.

The communications system is atrocious, he said. Walkie talkies break down and seldom work outside of a few-block radius of the station on Fisgard and radio equipment in the patrol cars is also inadequate.

$12,000 PAY? YOU'RE POOR

OTTAWA (CP) — A family of four with an income of less than $12,000 a year is considered today to be living in poverty, according to an estimate based on figures from Senator David Croll who led a Senate committee which released a landmark Report on Poverty in 1970.

That report said that in 1970 the income considered essential for a decent standard of living in Canada was $5,000 for a family of four.

The senator said Monday Statistics Canada showed the poverty line figure grew to $10,860 in 1976, the last figures available.

Senator Croll did not attempt to bring the figures up to date. But if an inflation rate of eight per cent is applied to the 1976 figures, the present poverty line would be in excess of $12,000 a year.

Senator Croll released these 1976 poverty lines—already more than a year out of date:

One person: $4,460, from $2,140 in the original report; family of two: $7,760 from $3,570; Three: $9,310 from $4,290; Four: $10,860 from $5,000; Five: $12,140 from $5,710; Six: $13,960 from $6,430; Seven: $15,510 from $7,140.

The Senate committee set its poverty line at 50 per cent of the average Canadian family income. The level is adjusted periodically to reflect changes in the cost of living.

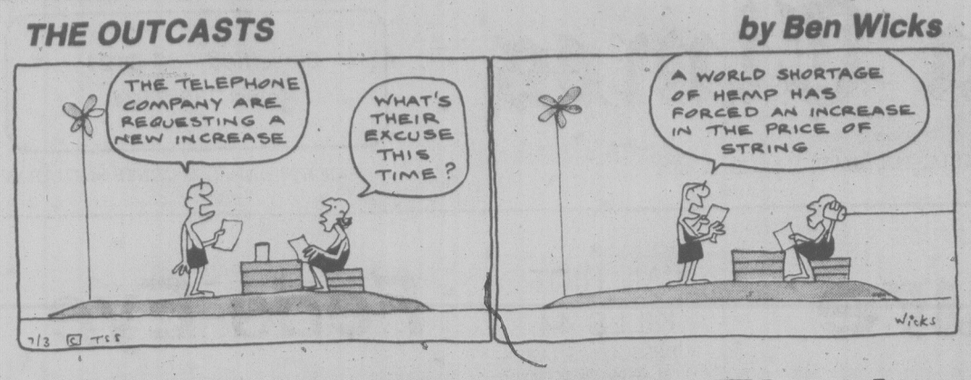
There is considerable divergence between the Senate's poverty line and Statistics Canada's "low-income lines" for 1976.

Statistics Canada says a family of four should be able to live on $6,584 to $9,054, depending on its place of residence. Even the most generous poverty line set by Statistics Canada still is almost $2,000 behind the Senate minimum.

A spokesman in Senator Croll's office explained: "We think our levels are a touch more realistic than Statistics Canada's."

Statistics Canada describes a family as below the low-income line if it spends more than 61 per cent of its total income on food, clothing and shelter.

The poverty lines are lowest in rural areas and highest in cities of 500,000 or more.



Dollar Prop Deal Fizzles

LONDON (UPI) — An American-German plan to bolster the dollar fell on world money markets with a dull thud today.

In Tokyo it set a postwar low. In Frankfurt and Zurich it lost substantially. Other markets trimmed its value slightly.

"Mountains were in labor but only a laughable mouse was born," the West German newspaper Die Welt commented today on the German-American plan to rescue the dollar.

"People don't really believe in it," a French currency dealer said of the $2 billion "swap" arrangement announced Monday by Bonn and Washington.

Japanese dealers predicted a nervous market and a delicate dollar until the Carter administration takes "concrete measures" instead of primarily psychological ploys like the swap arrangement.

The dollar actually rose slightly in Paris today, but this was thought to be a reaction to first-round French election results and to weekend adjustments in advance of the Bonn-Washington announcement.

The U.S. currency eased up to 4.765 French francs from the Monday close of 4.755. But dealers said the German-American plan was unlikely to have much more impact.

In Montreal, the U.S. dollar rose 7-100 to $1.1248 in terms of Canadian funds at noon today while pound sterling was up 23-50 at $2.1528.

In New York, the Canadian dollar was down 3-50 at $0.8890. Pound sterling was up 3-10 at $1.9140.

Tokyo's market dropped the U.S. dollar to 233 yen, its lowest value since the Second World War. The previous low was 233.40, set last Thursday.

The official Bank of Japan was believed to have spent $100 million to keep the dollar's value up, but it slid gently downward all day.

In London, the dollar gained overnight from $1.9105 to the pound to $1.90. This was its exact level Monday morning before the Bonn-Washington announcement.

LOTTERY BONDS SUGGESTED

REGINA (CP) — The creation of premium savings bonds, combining lottery tickets and savings bonds, was suggested Monday by Tony Merchant (L—Regina-Wascana).

During budget debate in the legislature, he said this type of bonds has been popular in Western Europe, Australia and New Zealand.

The government would sell the bonds and pay a low interest, perhaps about four per cent, but the paid interests would go into a pool with winners periodically drawn to collect large sums of money.

Transit Strike Review

Amalgamated Transit Union picket lines are affecting Hydro operations here and on the Lower Mainland and at Nanaimo, Duncan, Vernon, Prince George and Terrace.

The lines are being honored by members of the Office and Technical Employees Union and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 213, who are also in a position to strike, and by members of IBEW Local 258.

An ATU spokesman said Monday it will take several days for widespread picketing to start in the interior, where the union has threatened to hit power dams under construction.

A Hydro spokesman said today the only new picketing is at the Gordon Shrum generating station on the Peace River and at the Vernon control centre.

The strike has also affected Pacific Stage Lines Ltd., the Sea-Bus ferry between Vancouver and North Vancouver and the B.C. Hydro railway between Vancouver and Chilliwack.

In a related action, Saanich Ald. Ian Cass, chairman of the public transportation committee, failed to win committee support Monday night for a request that the provincial government classify all public transportation operations as essential under the Labor Code.

The committee also deleted from the Cass-sponsored resolution, proposals that all coach and bus operators be separated from Hydro and that the gasoline tax be increased to finance expansion and improvement of tansit facilities.

In its amended version, the resolution calls for establishment of a transit authority to co-ordinate existing fragmented resources, one minister to have over-all responsibility for all forms of public transportation and definite plans for rapid transit systems in Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver.

Doug Cronk, business agent for IBEW Local 258, which already has a contract with Hydro, said the union offered to have line crews on standby for emergencies but was refused.

"Hydro is denying the availability of emergency services that they have before them," he said. "Maybe the supervisors just like to go out and climb poles or maybe they're tired of sitting at desks."

Hydro general manager Norman Olsen said he could not agree to union demands that it identify emergency situations and that crews be paid while on standby.

"If there is an emergency we will go through the normal procedure," Olsen said. This means having a dispatcher contact the union to see if there is a crew available.

Cronk said his union has taken the initiative to see that certain employees are allowed past ATU picket lines in case of emergencies.

Nursery Jobs Short-Lived

VANCOUVER (CP) — Knapp's Garden Shop fired its two newest workers on Monday.

Tony Puddicombe and Andrew Halper, hired last Thursday and Friday by the nursery owned by Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm after pressure by the Downtown Eastside Residents Association, lost their $3.50-an-hour jobs.

Reasons for the dismissal differ.

Assistant manager Jos Van Hage told them to get off. They refused. He fired them.

"They phoned here and told us that's what happened. They didn't figure he had any right to dictate to them on their time off," said David Lane of DERA.

"They deliberately provoked Jos," said Knapp's manager Jeff Vander Zalm, the minister's son.

"Tony was sitting on the table. Jos told him to get off — it wasn't a sanitary thing to do. And Andrew, who'd been sitting on a chair until then, suddenly jumped up and sat on the table, defying Jos.

"They were troublemakers anyway. Andrew said Bill Vander Zalm was an SOB and we let that pass.

"And their attitude was very antagonistic. The two of them were dragging their feet the whole time. They went round asking our employees what their wages were, and if they were happy working here. And they put up a bulletin in the lunch room that said 'Are you one of B.C.'s 115,000 unemployed? Join DERA's daily job search.'"

Puddicombe and Halper, according to other Knapp employees, were dissatisfied with their $3.50 wages and said they could make more on unemployment insurance.

Puddicombe said Monday: "I'm not even a member of DERA. I came out on the job search because I was unemployed and I believe their job search is a valid method to impress on people the number of people out of work and the few jobs available.

"Thirty minutes before we were fired Hage told us both: 'If I catch you unionizing around the nursery I'll show you to the gate. You just try me.'

"In other words he intimidated us. We never asked people to join a union."

French, English Choice Asked

Victoria parents are being asked by the provincial education ministry to chose between English and French core curriculums in elementary schools.

Parents will be asked to select either French or English as the preferred language of instruction as part of a $45,000 province-wide survey commissioned by the education ministry.

The survey will evaluate the demand for elementary French instruction, Greater Victoria school district community relations officer Bill Stavdal said today.

A firm called the Canadian Facts Company is conducting the survey. Questionnaires were distributed last week to B.C. elementary school children to take home.

In press releases issued earlier this year, Education Minister Pat McGeer committed himself to extending elementary French programs this September.

Additional programs will be developed, where feasible, according to demand.

"That's the out clause," Stavdal said.

The district had difficulty finding qualified French instructors for for existing programs. An expanded program next semester could be hard to set up, Stavdal said.

The provincial study, similar the one conducted by the school board last fall, should be completed by March 31, Stavdal said.

The education ministry's version questions parents on their interest in the various types of French programs available: immersion or total French instruction, partial immersion, or the basic 20 minutes a day French instruction now being used in most elementary school.

The provincial study will also ask parents if they are willing to bus their children to other schools to receive French language instruction.

Most parents surveyed earlier by the school board indicated they would like to see some type of French instruction at the kindergarten and primary levels, although the majority did not favor transporting their children to other schools in the district.

Monitor Role 'Farce'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada will be "a complete farce" in its role as wage and price monitoring agency because it has no special investigative authority, Progressive Conservative critic James McGrath said Monday.

"It will have absolutely no power," McGrath (St. John's East) said in an interview following an exchange in the Commons with Finance Minister Jean Chretien.

McGrath suggested to Chretien that the council, assigned to monitor wage and price increases after mandatory controls end, should be given legislative authority to inevestigate increases and to order companies to open their books.

PRIVATE EYE CLAMPS SET

VANCOUVER (CP) — Legislation to regulate the private security industry in British Columbia will be introduced as early as the coming session of the legislature, Attorney-General Garde Gardom said Monday.

Gardom told a seminar of the Canadian Society for Industrial Security, Pacific Region, that the legislation now is being written, "and I intend to make the announcement in a couple of months, hopefully during the next session."

He said he was not able to discuss the details of the legislation, but "almost universally the industry will be supported."

Oil Port Retreat

OLYMPIA (AP) — The Trans Mountain Oil Pipeline Co. asked Monday that its application for a permit to establish an oil trans-shipment port at Cherry Point on Puget Sound be withdrawn.

Anthony Paul, the company's attorney, made the request during a meeting of the Energy Facility Site Evaluation Council which has been holding the permit on inactive status for the last two months.

The Trans Mountain plan, originally sponsored by Atlantic Richfield, proposed unloading of Alaskan crude oil at the firm's Cherry Point facility.

It became a moot proposal, however, after Senator Warren Magnuson, hammered through Congress an amendment to the Marine Mammals Protection Act, effectively banning any tanker traffic on the sound other than that needed to supply the existing Washington refineries.

A Delicate Balance

The federal Law Reform Commission in its latest large project — a study of procedure in criminal cases in Canada — has set itself a thin line indeed on which to walk.

The aim of the project is to make recommendations for changes in the law "which would save time, expense and public convenience for those caught up in the criminal process — whether they be the judge, the accused, witnesses, jurors, counsel, administrative staff or police officers."

It is an aim with which few people would disagree. That our criminal court system now is often unjustifiably slow, awkward and inconvenient has become a truism in the past few years. Horrifying stories of system-wise criminals using the rules to obstruct justice, of repeated delays for no apparent reason, of trials themselves lasting weeks or months at absurd costs to the taxpayer have been coming to public attention on a regular basis.

It would be easy to say that anything that would improve this situation would be all to the good.

The rules that are often causing delays and inconvenience are the same rules that were instituted to ensure that the rights of an accused person will be protected, that due process of law will be followed, that, as far as humans can ensure such things, justice will be done.

To eliminate many of those rules would undoubtedly improve the efficiency of the court system, but it might also pave the way for many future abuses. The job of the Law Reform Commission is to try to find ways of increasing efficiency and eliminating delays without affecting the traditional basic rights of individuals.

The recommendations contained in the commission's first report on the subject seem to maintain that delicate balance well. The changes suggested would allow witnesses with only non-controversial evidence to give to provide written depositions rather than hang around a courtroom for hours on end; would limit the rights of an accused to change his mind about the kind of trial he wanted; would even allow a case to be thrown out if the prosecution had not been able to bring it to trial within a year.

Because of the discretion allowed, the new rules would not work without much co-operation from those involved in the criminal justice system, from policemen through lawyers to judges. If anyone wanted to use the rules to obstruct or delay proceedings, that would still be possible. But the way would also be clear for many criminal proceedings to go ahead more smoothly and efficiently without abrogating any accused's rights.

Parliament should implement the package proposed by the Law Reform Commission, and all those involved in the system should do their best to see that it improves both the efficiency and the quality of justice in Canada.

Off the Buses

The immediate effects of the bus drivers' strike against B.C. Hydro appear to be a little inconvenience and some dislocation. Many commuters probably even secretly enjoyed the challenge on an otherwise uneventful March morning. The complete shutdown of a transit system which carries several hundred thousand people a day in Victoria, Vancouver and a number of Interior and Vancouver Island communities caused a minimum of fuss.

But one day is a novelty. If it drags on for five weeks as the strike of 1971 did, this work stoppage will have a more serious impact. In seven years, Hydro's transit system has been improved beyond a busman's dream.

One minor but significant example: nighttime service in Victoria, which used to be a laughable 40 minutes apart, now is at 20-minute intervals — the difference between a completely ruined evening because of a missed connection and a tolerable wait for the next bus. The bus network operated by Hydro has been extended far out into Vancouver's suburbs. Hundreds of new buses have been purchased. The innovative Seabus ferry service across Vancouver harbor pointed in a new direction, away from the standard refrain of more bridges and bigger freeways.

This has created a larger pool of bus riders who have come to depend on the transit system to get to work, for downtown shopping, entertainment and recreation. Any lengthy interruption of service will create new transportation patterns, and numbers of former regular riders will not return when the buses come back.

One theory has it that the provincial government is going to use B.C. Hydro as an example to other civil servants and employees of Crown corporations; it is prepared to wait out a long strike and will not give in easily. We hope not — periods of economic austerity may come and go, but the damage done by a one- or two-month closure of the transit system could take a very long time to repair.

'78 Economic Forecast: Slow

OTTAWA — Although there is a sizeable variation between them, all of the main economic forecasts continue to point to the same two developments — a better year than in 1977 but even so sluggish recovery from the difficulties of the past two years.

The range of forecasts is from a growth rate of five per cent down to one of only three per cent. The midpoint is 4.2 per cent, a considerable improvement on last year's 2.3 per cent real growth.

Although there will be seasonal changes in the extent of unemployment, even the best of these anticipated rates of growth would not do much to cut into the problem. If the most optimistic of the forecasts proves correct, unemployment should at least not go on increasing.

It is obvious, as it has been for some time, that we will have serious unemployment with us until, at the earliest, some time in the early 1980s.

On the other side of the twin problem of inflation and high unemployment, the prospect for slower price increases is more encouraging. It is the rapid rise in food prices which has kept the consumer price index rising so sharply — nine per cent bigger this January than last. This is of great importance for individuals but it obscures price developments in the rest of the economy. With food excluded, the January over January increase in prices was 6.8 per cent, continuing the steady slowing that has taken place since 1975.

Food's the Culprit

The modest confidence of the forecasters is being sustained in large part by three developments — a strong improvement in retail sales late last year, 1977's 17 per cent increase in exports and the significant improvement in consumer confidence shown by the Conference Board's latest survey.

The qualifications to the forecasters' confidence arise in large part from indications that business and industrial investment will go on being weak, from continued sluggishness in the manufacturing sector and from the unresolved balance of payments problem. There is also some concern over the likely number of housing starts.

This complex picture is increasing the conviction that something more than cyclical difficulties are plaguing the Canadian economy. The term "structural problems" is usually applied to this and it suffers from the same defect as the constant talk of "constitutional change" — and it is so often used without specifics that it means nothing to the man in the street. In recent reports, both the Conference Board and the C.D. Howe Institute have been attempting to cast more light on problems of this sort and make them more meaningful to ordinary people.

The Howe economists believe that "the current situation differs from the past in two ways. First, there is a difference in degree — more fundamental changes seem to be going on than in any other period since World War II. Second, there are important differences in the response of people and institutions to this change. There is a tendency to believe that we have developed the economic policy tools necessary to control changes in the economy . . ."

They also write that:

"There are some striking similarities between the kinds of structural change going on now and those that have triggered long periods of economic stagnation in the past. In particular, the decline in population growth in Canada, the United States and Europe is taking the momentum out of investment in housing and in educational facilities and is slowing the growth in many consumer markets.

"In addition, the momentum behind major technological developments seems to be dissipating. The electronics industry, which has spawned so many new products in past decades, is now concentrating its efforts on the refinement of small electronic calculators rather than on new uses of electronic knowledge. And the continuing build-up in corporate and national debt has made it more difficult for the economic system to withstand long periods of economic stagnation."

UNEMPLOYMENT GRAPH
. . . for '78, holding steady

The Conference Board also comments on the significance of this build-up of debt, writing:

"The emergence of an increasing deficit in travel combined with mounting interest and dividend payments abroad, reflecting an increased reliance on foreign capital, produced a service account deficit of $5¾ billion in 1976, with this deficit likely to reach $9 billion by 1979."

The board also notes that "an examination of the composition of Canada's merchandise trade reveals a growing deficit in manufactured products which has continued virtually uninterrupted since 1970. This development has been coincident with a rapid expansion in production costs in Canada across a broad spectrum of manufacturing industries."

The Howe institute warns that "the test of a dynamic economy lies in its ability to shed inefficient and obsolete activities and to adapt to new, more efficient processes. The two key characteristics are therefore adaptibility and innovation." It feels that a combination of protective policies and reliance upon imported ideas and management "has failed to foster the innovation and the entrepreneurship needed to spurt on the creative part of the process." Its economists are clearly worried, too, at the level of resistance to the various forms of adaptation that are now becoming necessary, some of it fostered by government policies.

Adaptable Enough?

There is, for instance, resistance to relocation from areas of economic stagnation to ones of greater opportunity and our social programs increase this reluctance. Resistance to the income changes that would normally occur in a period such as this is increased, in their view, by some forms of indexing against inflation.

The wage guidelines of the last few years provided for protection against inflation and for increases based on productivity and so militated against changes in expenditure patterns that would have reflected new values for energy and higher prices stemming from devaluation of the dollar.

One of the great structural changes of the last few years has, of course, been the altered value of energy in relation to other things but to a considerable extent Canadians have been protected against the direct effects of this change.

"The introduction of widespread indexing in Canada encourages the view that individuals should be protected against declines in real income — a promise that is impossible to keep over the longer run," these economists write.

The great question posed by both groups is whether Canada possesses the adaptability that is required now.

Seal Hunt Idiocy

When I saw on television and heard on radio that the churches were blessing the sealing ships and their crews, I could not help but remember how we were blessed in the First World War when we were on our way to kill Germans. Undoubtedly the Germans were also blessed by their churches in their mission to slaughter Allied soldiers.

It is so tragic that this slaughter has to take place to satisfy the vanity of some brainless women in their search for greater adornment of their bodies. They would be so much better employed if they tried to improve their empty minds.

When the world is planning its own destruction by nuclear war, I suppose the slaughter of some 180,000 baby seals is not a matter of great import. It has been proven that nature looks after itself in restricting the various forms of life and so the premise that these baby seals must be slaughtered in order to preserve the fish population, is just so much nonsense. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 301-1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

What's Difference?

In response to a letter from Miss Gaye Moore, I feel compelled to throw a few thoughts her way from the other side of the fence.

If she feels that the killing of baby seals is inhumane and senseless, then what about the slaughter of young cattle and other young livestock? Don't these animals look just as cute when they are young? Or is it a case of people turning a blind eye just because those veal cutlets are delicious?

Contrary to public opinion, seal meat is quite edible. One has only to stroll down the St. John's, Nfld. waterfront on the day after the sealing fleet returns to see how much is sold to the local population. If certain animals are to be guarded at the expense of the livelihood of a working man, then why don't they ban the shooting of deer and moose, the snaring of rabbits, and the trapping of fox?

If you were to travel to Newfoundland and look at the unemployment situation, you would see why the seal hunt continues. Not only is the seal a resource to be harvested, but also a source of income which can make the difference of whether or not the sealer will have to go into debt to support his family.

When conservationists say the seals are not in danger of extinction, why won't people accept this at face value? Do you think that lessons such as the near extinction of the whooping crane haven't taught mankind a lesson?

Finally, who says it's a waste of money for the province of Newfoundland to send people across the country making positive statements about the seal hunt? If the Greenpeace foundation can make so many negative statements about the hunt, isn't it right for the people it will affect most to stand up and defend themselves?

I know that the picture of a baby seal with those two big helpless looking eyes can warm the heart of the coldest person. But the eyes of a deer are just as touching, and so are the eyes of that stray dog that seems to always be in your garbage containers. Why doesn't someone stand up for the rights of these animals? If there is any great difference between these two animals, please take the time to explain the facts to me. — D. W. Hayter, 2-1388 Hillside Avenue.

Sickening

This is a pretty upsetting time of year for a lot of us, we have to race to the TV set to turn off those sickening pictures of that Great Canadian Institution, the annual seal slaughter.

I think it was last year that all our elected MPs voted to the effect that this event is not only to go on but it's a Good Thing. Someone authorized a slick, expensive publication more or less making out that the seal hunters are noble, dedicated folk. Well I don't know how many people that fooled, but I have a suggestion.

Seeing as our MPs think this is so great they should all be conveyed out to the ice floes to see it at first hand.

I'd be quite happy to kick in to pay for this outing.

Our very own MP, Allan McKinnon, is strangely silent whenever I write him on this subject. Come to that he's that way on everything I write to him about! — J. Wakefield, 308-576 Simcoe Street.

Nauseating

At a time when Canada is treading ever deeper into the mire of dissension, patronage and economic skullduggery, due largely to a great lack of integrity and imagination at all levels of government. I find it nauseating at the very least to read of supposedly intelligent people denigrating a man of the stature of Captain James Cook.

Is it not enough that this great person was shabbily treated by the British government of the day, not only during his short life, but after in regard to his dependent family.

Against the background of his day this self-made man, whose last thought no doubt, was how big his pay cheque was going to be at the end of the month, stands out as an example of sincere humanity and above all, integrity; both qualities almost entirely missing from our supposedly advanced society. The world, and Canada in particular, could well use a few men with Cook's imagination and devotion.

We must assume that the people who make such scurrilous statements know little or nothing of the subject, or have some dismal axe to grind!

Who will be next on the block? Captain George Vancouver, a protege of Cook; or Simon Fraser, or others of those hardened Scotsmen and Englishmen who opened up North America?

As one well acquainted with New Zealand and its people whose regard for Cook is still unsullied, I am sure that they will be very pleased to hear that in British Columbia Captain James Cook is likely to become a non-person! And in Napier, Victoria's sister city, that in his bicentennial year our chief concern is how much money we can remove from the tourist's pocket! — S. B. Spencer, 1296 Richardson Street.

Rent Controls

Rafe Mair, the minister of consumer affairs, has stated there is a 90 per cent chance the B.C. government will start to phase out its residential rent control program by the end of June. This will pave the way for uncontrolled rental increases, to add excessive profits to the coffers of real estate speculators and landlords at the expense of the people who are finding it ever more difficult to maintain a standard of living above the poverty level. In fact, many such as the unemployed, the handicapped, the old aged and many students are at that point now.

The residents of Oak Bay should insist that the candidates running in their byelection state their position on this vital matter in their speeches and on their campaign advertisements. Those who refuse or avoid doing so, deserve no support from the electorate, no matter what party banner they run under. — D. Frankham, President, Capital Region Tenants Association, 2161 Haultain Street.

E & N Anniversary

March 29 is the 90th anniversary of E & N Railway service between Victoria and Nanaimo. On that day in 1888 the citizens of Victoria turned out 5,000 strong to welcome the first train.

To commemorate that event, the city of Victoria is arranging a celebration for March 29, 1978. A special train will arrive at the foot of Pandora Street just as it did in 1888. On board will be up-Island community representatives, retired railway people and school children.

An important part of the celebration will be displays of early E & N era photographs and momentos at city hall.

We at city hall would be very pleased to hear from people with knowledge or memorabilia which would assist us in staging this event. Ainslie Helmcken, the city archivist, would take charge of any items loaned for the displays.

The writer or Mr. Helmcken can be contacted at 385-5711. — Ald. Murray D. Glazier, Chairman, E & N Anniversary Committee.

Tragic Numbers

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

The subject of suicide is not one the public discusses with ease. The suffering of bereaved relatives and friends and the often uncomfortable social questions raised by the nature of the act tend to keep the topic away from the public's eye.

But there are exceptions. According to a report by a federal health nurse on the Cree Indian Reserve of Hobbema, Alberta, the rate of suicide in the community is 20 times the national average. Between May, 1976, and October, 1977, 17 people on the reserve took their lives, while 35 others met violent deaths.

Phyllis Cummings, the nurse who wrote the report, tells of drug and alcohol abuse among young teen-agers, gangs of youths "terrorizing the reserve," and seven homes being burned in one month "due to neglect or arson." A priest from the area talks of religious confusion and a loss of identity driving many Indians to despair and drink.

The government's reaction is to hide the issue; the federal Health Department's regional director for Alberta has refused to release any statistics on the subject. It is, he explains, "such a delicate subject."

When 17 people in a community of 4,100 take their lives within 18 months and when 18 more make abortive suicide attempts in the span of one month, the subject is more than "delicate;" it is explosive. Complex social problems—problems which touch all of us—appear to lie at the root of the Hobbema crisis; those problems can't be dealt with if they're locked away in a government file.

MAIR
. . . dandelions next?

THE SUN
An Editorial

They did it. They actually went and did it. Egged on by Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair and deputy minister Tex Enemark, the Don Quixote and Sancho Panza of the supermarkets, the cabinet actually passed an order-in-council outlawing the sale of Wonder Wine in grocery stores by defining it as liquor.

But can we relax now? Are our children safe from alcoholism now that they can no longer make Wonder Wine? No. Mr. Mair cannot stop there.

What about malt and yeast and sugar? Get them off the shelves too — they're just another name for beer. What about fruit? The demon drink in disguise. Honey? A mere step away from mead.

And what about all the stuff that's not sold in the stores — the juniper berries on Little Mountain, the blueberries on the North Shore slopes, the blackberries on the vacant lot down the street, the rose hips in the garden, the dandelions in the front lawn? Aren't they all booze just as much as Wonder Wine is?

Just think — with all that under control, pretty soon British Columbia will be one big government liquor store.

They may laugh at Mr. Mair in Toronto, but what they don't know is that tilting at windmills is a serious business out here.

Orange County Conservatism Comes a Cropper

The home of John Birchers turns back toward middle after traumatic land scandals

By LOU CANNON

SANTA ANA, Calif. — A decade ago a state senator named John Schmitz, whose conservatism was exceeded only by his sense of humor, quipped he had joined the John Birch Society because he "had to do something to get the middle-of-the-road vote in Orange County."

Schmitz, who now teaches political science at Santa Ana College, understood his constituents. In the rise of the right that was one of the features of political life in the 1960s, Orange County was a pioneer.

The county supported every fashionable conservative cause and candidate. It was a bastion for Barry Goldwater and Ronald Reagan and for initiatives that would have outlawed obscenity and imposed antisubversive controls.

These measures and candidates except for Reagan were overwhelmingly rejected by Californians, but they carried big in Orange County. After all, it was the home of the Santa Ana Register, which routinely editorialized against spending public funds even for schools or jails.

Nationally, "Orange County" became a symbol for some of the kookier varieties of conservatism.

Democrats, with few exceptions, were inclined to write Orange County off as a lost cause in the 1960s. The only credit the county earned from its Democratic and liberal detractors was that its politics generally were ethical and above-board, without hint of corruption.

Now, after a period of tumultuous growth in which the county's population has increased from 700,000 in 1960 to 1.8 million today, the Orange County reputation for conservatism is tattered and so is its record of integrity.

With some significant exceptions, the ideologies of the past have been replaced by indistinguishable unprogrammatic politicians of the present. And the tradition of good government has been engulfed by 43 indictments of public officials during the last three years on such charges as bribery, theft, false voter registration, perjury and laundering of campaign funds.

The list of those indicted includes two congressmen, three supervisors and the county assessor. Thirty-six of those indicted have been convicted or have pleaded guilty. Only one has been acquitted. The rest are awaiting trial.

What happened to the twin Orange County traditions of conservatism and incorruptibility? The answers, as to so many questions in California, are bound up in the land.

A decade ago Orange County was a rural, bedroom community of pretty fields and orchards mixed with tree-shaded inland towns and attractive coastal communities. Today it is the fastest growing and 19th largest metropolitan region in the nation, and the second most populous county in California. It lies at the centre of the developing San Diego-to-Santa Barbara megalopolis.

Most of the orchards that gave the county its name have been torn down to make way for tract houses. In the process, millions of dollars have changed hands, mostly as the result of zoning decisions made by the county board of supervisors, which controls development of unincorporated land.

"If you get to be a supervisor in Orange County, you get to zone the fastest growing part of the country," Schmitz said. "There's a kind of legalized extortion you can perform.

"If you throw a $1,000 cocktail party, are the land developers going to come? You bet your sweet Aunt Molly they are."

In other fast-growing regions of the West, county officials often have been restrained by the competing demands of a developed central city. There is no such city in Orange County.

"While exploding with growth, Orange County became 26 cities in search of an identity," wrote Bud Lembke in California Journal. "Downtown Santa Ana deteriorated, its stores unable to compete with outlying shopping centres.

"The county lost its focal point. Its two most prominent features today are probably the ersatz Matterhorn at Disneyland and Anaheim Stadium ... neither quite fills the bill as a rallying point for suburbia."

The lack of centralism is reinforced by the absence of a single dominating newspaper or television station. Much as New Jersey is overshadowed by the concerns of New York and Philadelphia, Orange County is outshone by the glow of Los Angeles, where the television station staffs rarely bother with Orange County issues.

A random poll by the Los Angeles Times of 100 persons at Orange County shopping centres showed 49 of them had never heard of the 43 indictments, despite heavy newspaper coverage.

State Controller Kenneth Cory, a rare Democratic state assemblyman in the days when the county was represented mostly by Republicans, thinks two factors contributed to and then undermined conservatism in the county.

First, Cory believes, was the appeal of "new right" doctrines to the "absolutism" of the many aerospace engineers who made their homes there. But then came the aerospace economic slump of 1969 and 1970, forcing these engineers to seek federal help and making government intervention seem more benign.

"Suddenly, it was their families who needed welfare, not the 'welfare chislers' they have been talking about," Cory said. "And it was they who were on unemployment and wanted it extended."

The population growth brought into Orange County huge numbers of people who knew little or cared less about the county's conservative political tradition.

These included suburban liberals, some Mexican-Americans and academics associated with the growth of the University of California Irvine campus.

In California newcomers can have an impact in a hurry. Within a short time the new Orange County residents were beginning to alter fundamentally the character of such important institutions as the county grand jury, which under California law has widespread investigatory authority.

"The grand jury on which I served in 1969 had two blacks, two Mexican-Americans, five women, four Jews and seven or eight Democrats," said Judy B. Rosener, a writer on the staff of public administration at the University of California at Irvine.

"It was disproportionate to the county. The grand jury asked questions. At the same time the county was developing, you had a group of people who were questioning development."

The grand juries also were questioning — and ultimately indicting — some of the candidates who received huge sums of money from developers and paid it to campaign firms that relied heavily on computerized mailings and misrepresentations of opponents' campaign statements bordering on "dirty tricks."

"The average candidate will do anything to win an election," said Arnold Forde, one of the most successful campaign managers in the county.

A majority of those indicted were Democrats. Such goings-on led Frank Mesple, a lobbyist who was a principal aide in the state-wide administration of Gov. Edmund G. Brown, to crack, "you guys are indicting Democrats as fast as we can elect them."

Schmitz provided Hinshaw with the political ammunition in the form of a quip that he "didn't mind Richard Nixon going to Red China, but just didn't want him coming back."

However, the troops for working the precincts came from the office of Hinshaw, who was then the county assessor. Nine aides were indicted or convicted after the election, and Hinshaw himself ultimately was convicted of bribery and defeated by the voters in 1976.

Orange county today remains a Republican county, but with a Democratic core. The central area of Santa Ana, Garden Grove and Buena Vista has a Democratic representative in Congress and three Democratic state legislators.

Otherwise, the county hasn't changed its conservative outlook as much as some people like to think.

It may still be the most conservative in the state, as Schmitz contends, but the old fire-in-the-belly passions that stirred the new right seems to have been lost among the vanquished orchards.

The Washington Post

russell baker

My knowledge of what goes on in singles bars comes entirely from reading reviews of "Looking for Mister Goodbar." I gather they are places where a girl like Diane Keaton can get herself murdered. Also that they are filled with what Steve Martin calls "wild and swinging guys" and a species of femininity called "chicks."

Naturally then, I scarcely lifted an eyebrow at gossip that the president's Number One man, Hamilton Jordan, had thrown a drink on a woman in such a place. I am ashamed to confess that when it was first reported I immediately assumed it was true.

This was not because of any suspicion that Jordan is not a true gentleman, but because of my own ignorance and confusion about contemporary etiquette between the sexes. In the strange society of single bars, it seems to me, throwing a drink on a woman might very well be an accepted way of advancing a relationship.

From Jordan's angry denial and the ensuing fuss in swinging Washington, I now gather that this is not acceptable conduct, but I am still uncertain about what forms of behavior are permissible among swinging singles at their bars.

The bars I frequent are mostly for tired husbands, and in these it is perfectly acceptable for a man to throw a drink on another man, provided he is willing thereafter to step outside. This leads to many refreshing relationships. If a man throws a drink on a woman, however, he is thrown outside alone. The solitude of exile is the social punishment of the man who violates the etiquette of the tired husbands.

It is also all right to offer to lick any man in the house, although I have never seen this knightly challenge laid down except in cartoons. What the rule may be on throwing drinks on other men in singles bars, I do not know, but it seems the sort of thing wild and swinging guys would regard as pretty tame stuff and hardly worth a trip outside.

On balance, my opinion of singles bars has risen since discovering that throwing drinks on women is frowned upon just as it is in the tired husbands bars. Relationships between the sexes have become so baffling nowadays that it is comforting to find a common thread of social agreement between at least two drinking communities.

There are some feminists, I suppose, who will see only insult and discrimination in an etiquette that denies a woman the male right to receive a thrown drink in a bar. Considered rationally, their point is sound. If a man can go into a bar and have a drink thrown on him by another man, while a woman can't, there is a clear and devastating implication that the woman is regarded as weaker than me, as a creature in need of protective social restrictions and, in short, as a sex object.

I have no desire to inflame women who take this view. I see the merit of their case but simply cannot bring myself to throw drinks on them. For this reason I avoid the more cosmopolitan bars in midtown and downtown Manhattan which are likely to attract feminists apt to make a nasty scene if I throw a drink on a male gossip columnist but not on my wife.

This uncertainty about how a man may conduct himself in the presence of a woman is one of the difficut byproducts of the feminist movement. It isn't limited to the small question whether you should throw a drink at this woman to establish that you aren't a male chauvinist or whether you ought not to throw a drink at that woman because she lives by the code of the singles bars.

The problem now is how to make human contact with a woman. Recently a successful feminist novelist told an interviewer that all men are rapists. "My good woman," I was about to argue, "now you have gone too far," but her interview interrupted me. Men that don't rape violently, she went on, "rape you with their eyes."

Since reading this, I have averted my eyes whenever a woman approaches on the street. In the crowded streets of Manhattan this takes a lot of averting. What's worse, it takes a good bit of pleasure out of life. One gets weary of looking only at men.

The worst of it, however, is that I am certain there are still many women who desire men to look at them, who do not at all regard a cool glance or even an interested stare as rape, who are discouraged and saddened, in fact, if men do not look at them.

How can a man do his social duty to these women who pass him by thousands daily in the steets without risking commission of bestial eye rape upon the sensitive feminists who walk among them loathing his swinish glance?

The only safe course nowadays is to avoid women altogether until they have fully informed you, preferably in writing, of the social codes they expect you to observe in regard to looking, throwing drinks and all other etiquette between the sexes. I don't know how to get them to write you this information if you don't dare look at them long enough to meet them. You probably can't. That's probably why so many New Yorkers who can't afford psychiatrists go to tired husbands bars.

STEPHENS' FATE UP TO BENCHERS

VANCOUVER (CP) — The benchers of the Law Society of British Columbia will decide the case against lawyer Vic Stephens, cited last year for unprofessional conduct, at their monthly meeting here March 31.

Society spokesman Dennis Olmstead said Monday that the matter was turned over to the 24 benchers after a three-person disciplinary committee was unable to achieve a unanimous decision on the issue.

The controversy arose after Stephens, now leader of the provincial Progressive Conservative Party, opened a new-style law office in Vancouver which received widespread publicity.

Advertising by a lawyer is "conduct unbecoming to a member of the society," according to the benchers' rules.

Olmstead refused to say whether the majority of the committee had been in favor of clearing Stephens or not.

However, Bruce Macdonald, Stephens' lawyer, said two members ruled that Stephens should be cleared, while the chairman ruled he shouldn't.

IWA Co-Operation 'Three-Way Split'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Woodworkers of America, the largest union in the forest industry, is willing to co-operate with government and business, regional president Jack Munro said Monday.

However, he warned the annual meeting of the Canadian Forestry Association of British Columbia that co-operation must be reciprocated.

"I want to make it clear the IWA looks on it as a three-way split and that means just that," he said, "with us having a one-third input."

He said the union wants to break from its traditional role, a move opposed by many other unions, "but please don't try to take advantage of us."

He said government and business cannot say on one hand they will support co-operation and "then hammer us with the other."

Munro told the association his 50,000-member union wants to play a broader role in society and within the industry. He said the IWA has hired its own professional forester and is requesting a voice on advisory boards and other decision-making bodies.

"We believe we will always have a role to play in the industry. We want to assist you in attempts to educate the public on the importance of the industry."

He criticized the industry for its poor public relations efforts, saying companies "have done a terrible job telling the public what goes on in the industry."

The union, he said, wants to oppose those groups which would deprive "us of our timber rights."

While strongly supporting conservation and multiple use of the forests, Munro also said "we are not interested in turning B.C. into a beautiful park with no employment."

"It's time someone slowed the conservationists down."

Too Many Lay Claim To Gems

VANCOUVER (CP) — The hearing to determine ownership of gold, jewels, money and other valuables recovered in the $2.5 million robbery at the Vancouver Safety Deposit Vault company will reconvene April 19.

Justice George Murray of the British Columbia Supreme Court said Monday that the hearing will reconvene in a ballroom at the Hotel Vancouver.

The hearing had to be postponed Monday because the courtroom being used could only seat less than half of the 200 persons who appeared to claim ownership of valuables recovered in the January, 1977, robbery.

Crown counsel John Hall told the court that 319 persons have filed claims while another 56 persons are in the process of making claims. He said 90 persons have said they would not file claims and only 500 of the estimated 900 victims have come forward.

Strike Brings Resignation

SPARWOOD (CP) — The local president of the United Mine Workers of America (UMWA) resigned Monday to protest a wildcat walkout earlier in the day at Kaiser Resources Ltd.'s coal operation here.

Lennard Bourne said the walkout would cause suffering in this southeastern B.C. community and he could not condone the action. He said his resignation would be effective Wednesday.

The work stoppage began Monday when the miners failed to report for work to protest a company move to eliminate jobs of oilers and laborers. The mine employs 1,500 workers.

A spokesman for UMWA local 7292 said the move means "our people have to do dual classification." He said union members won't return to work until the problem is resolved.

The union has been seeking a new contract with Kaiser for 14 months.

A company spokesman said Kaiser considers the walkout an illegal strike over work practises but wouldn't say if the company was considering legal action to force a return to work.

The spokesman said Kaiser is willing to discuss the matter through normal grievance procedures once the men go back to work.

Who Pays Bill For Gypsies?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A lawyer acting on behalf of 32 gypsies in their application for refugee status said Monday that MP Bill Clark (PC—Vancouver Quadra) will present their case today in the House of Commons.

John Taylor also said the federal government is responsible for providing housing for the group until a decision has been made on their application.

However, Jim Pasman, acting regional immigration director, said the federal government shouldn't pay the bill, mounting at the rate of $180 a day.

"We are still waiting to hear from Ottawa on their immigration status," he said. "But that's all we're concerned with. We're certainly not responsible for their hotel."

The gypsies, at least 10 of them children, were stopped a week ago after they entered Canada from the United States. Their five cars were impounded for various motor vehicle law infractions.

The provincial Human Resources Department booked them into a motel and paid the bill until Friday.

"I really thought we had worked out an agreement with the (federal) immigration people on this," said Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm. "And I would guess that any arrangement would be that they would pick up the motel bill."

Motel owner Mrs. Balvinder Gill said she has no idea who will pay the bill.

"But what are we supposed to do, throw them out?" said Mrs. Gill. "How could we? All those children, an old man over 70 with a weak heart, and a woman who is expecting a baby any day now?

"We are all human beings. Where would they go?"

Condition of Durers Causing Concern

Art Gallery of Greater Victoria curator Roger Boulet said Monday he is worried that London police may not be keeping recovered renaissance prints in ideal conditions.

The 400-year-old work of Albrecht Durer, stolen from a travelling exhibit being shown at the University of Calgary in 1976, turned up last week in a London safe deposit box. Most of the missing work had already been replaced by the Victoria gallery after its insurance company asked for a settlement claim.

Boulet said he has heard nothing from British or Calgary police and does not know which prints have been recovered.

But he pointed out that prints, unless kept under optimum conditions, are subject to deterioration with variation in humidity and the possibility of mildew. He hoped police were aware of this and able to find a safe resting place for the work.

Boulet said the Victoria gallery's prints were made mostly during Durer's late lifetime but covering a period of some 75 years to 1600. Those made during the life of the artist would be more valuable than those printed later from the original woodcuts.

The curator said he could make positive identification of the recovered work and was surprised he had not been asked.

Although the insurer has paid about $20,000 in claims for the stolen art, the gallery would still have a technical claim to the recovered works, Boulet said.

"Theoretically, when art is recovered it becomes the property of the insurance company. But what usually happens is that the insurance companies, who are not in the art-selling business, offer to sell them back and we can resell them or waive our claim to them."

The Durer prints showed up after some $3 million worth of art was seized by police from a Calgary home.

Legal Post Given To Cleric

Davis Smith, 40, has been appointed to the Legal Services Commission of British Columbia, Attorney-General Garde Gardom announced on the weekend.

Before joining the staff of the Metropolitan Council of the United Church of Vancouver last March, Smith served as justice co-ordinator at Prince Rupert for two years.

He holds a BA from the University of British Columbia and a bachelor of divinity degree from the Union College of B.C. He has been a security guard at Oakalla and a student assistant at the Alert Bay Marine Mission.

A minister of the United Church, he has also worked as a parole and probation superintendent.

He is married with three children.

Palestinians Flee Their Homes

Times News Services

Palestinians in southern Lebanon fled their homes and sought shelter today in anticipation of what the Palestine Liberation Organization predicted would be a "savage" retaliatory Israeli military strike.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin, for the second time in as many days, warned Monday in Jerusalem that Israel would "cut off the arm of evil" to avenge a Palestinian terrorist attack that killed 32 Israelis and wounded 85 others.

Early today, intermittent rain, thick clouds and an angry Mediterranean appeared to make any counter-strike involving air or sea forces unlikely.

But guerrilla forces near the southern border with Israel were on full alert in case the Israelis launched a land attack.

Yasser Arafat, the head of Al Fatah and of the PLO, said in a speech in Beirut Monday night that three brigades of Israeli tanks, paratroops and mechanized units were deployed to hit guerrilla strongholds.

Syrian peacekeeping forces in Lebanon were reported moving big guns and missile batteries to the Sidon coast, 40 kilometres south of Beirut. Hundreds fled from the ports of Tyre and Sidon, both of which are controlled by the Palestinians and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies.

All 13 Palestinian camps in Lebanon were on a "red alert."

In Washington, the White House announced that Begin has rescheduled his trip to Washington, postponed because of the Palestinian attack, and will arrive next Monday.

COWICHAN TEST SITE FOR FISHERY ACT?

does not mean that I am trying to close down the B.C. forest industry, but that I am requesting early consultation so that both industry and fisheries can work towards achieving effective and mutually satisfactory solutions to their concerns."

Leblanc said he wants the forest industry to recognize the possible adverse effects industrial expansion on the Cowichan estuary can have, and to work with local fisheries officers in finding workable solutions.

B.C. Wildlife Federation spokesman David Anderson, however, said that Leblanc's telegram makes it clear that Ottawa fully intends to apply Bill C-38 to protect the estuary if need be.

Anderson said he welcomed Leblanc's stand because the Cowichan estuary provides an excellent opportunity to test the amended Fisheries Act.

If the government could successfully protect the Cowichan through the implementation of legislative regulations, said Anderson, it would set a valuable precedent for other estuaries on the West coast.

Leblanc's telegram arrived as a task force established by the B.C. cabinet's Environment and Land Use Committee held a hearing at Duncan into proposed developments on the estuary.

At the hearing Anderson opposed the construction of a new mill, saying that "Limited industrial expansion is like limited heroin addiction."

The Steelhead Society of B.C. also came out against the proposed development saying that "it's ironic, for our province now has a Salmonid Enhancement Program — one which will eventually cost $300 million — whose purpose is to raise salmonids in a river that will be eventually destroyed by the myopic vision of a government which would allow development there today."

HOLDS DENTURES FIRM WITHOUT DAILY "FIXINGS"

Snug Cushions hold dentures comfortably tight for weeks

No more "fixings" every morning with messy powders or creams. Even if dentures need "fixing" after every meal, here's important news. Snug cushions restore dentures' holding power so dentures stay comfortably tight for weeks. Snug, the soft, effective temporary aid, forms a "comfort bond" between dentures and gums. Sticks to dentures, not to gums. Rinse, scrub or soak Snug fresh and clean. Easy to remove, but won't wash off or flake away. So, end daily "fixings"! Use Snug to hold dentures comfortably tight for weeks.

12-Hour Shifts An 'Insult' Police Say

mitter ceased to function and for an entire weekend, messages were sent out over a radio in a patrol car that was driven up on the sidewalk and parked next to a window in the dispatch room.

"It would have been laughable if it hadn't been so serious," an officer said. "The aerial was placed on top of a ladder and a battery charger connected to the car to keep it running."

There is also a problem over riot equipment. The men asked to have the equipment in every patrol car, but senior officials vetoed the suggestion and ordered it placed in just two vehicles — the paddy wagon and a sergeant's car.

"It's a ridiculous situation," an officer said. "A couple of weeks ago we had a riot at the Bastion Inn but we couldn't get to the car that had the riot gear because one of the persons involved in the fracas had the key."

Another officer told the Times the emphasis seems to be more on appearance — the length of an officer's hair or moustache — than on job performance and it's often taken to ridiculous extremes.

"I heard an inspector once take one of the men to task for having a moustache an eighth of an inch too long. Imagine that! An eighth of an inch too long!"

Officers, while pleased the department has finally bought new cars and hired a first-class mechanic, are still distressed by certain shortcomings. For instance, there's no holder for shotguns in the vehicles. Officers have to hold the weapons on their lap when they take them out.

Some unmarked cars don't have emergency lights or sirens.

The men are also unhappy over the attitude of senior officers towards a new kind of night stick, a 26-inch baton that is being tried out by members of the New Westminster police force.

"We want the batons because it provides an alternative," one officer explained. "Right now all an officer has is his physical strength or his gun, which is a fatal extreme.

"We can't understand why they (senior officials of the department) allow officers to walk around with a .38 on their hip but don't allow us a baton, which is used only to suppress troublemakers, not kill them."

He said officers hoped for changes three years ago when a summer law student constable wrote a blistering report on the conditions within the force. The report was never made public.

in a violent campaign — including two train hijackings — in which South Moluccan extremists have been trying to force the Dutch government to support their claims for an independent homeland in what is now part of Indonesia.

The Moluccan extremists are seeking independence for the South Moluccan island group — formerly known as the Spice Islands — once owned by the Netherlands but now under Indonesian rule. In two previous attacks, Moluccans hijacked trains and held hostages in a schoolhouse to press their demands.

The hostages rescued today were taken to a medical center in downtown Assen for checks and reunions with relatives.

The marines' action took only 20 minutes. Even after a spokesman announced it was underway, only an eerie silence shrouded the building which normally houses 600 workers in the provincial government. Then there was a deep rumbling sound, apparently of explosions, followed by the shattering of glass and chattering of gunfire.

The only sign of military action that could be seen on from the outside of the four-story glass and concrete building was when a score of armored cars took up positions in surrounding parkland.

One theory was that the marines, trained in hand-to-hand combat and veterans of previous anti-terrorist actions, already were in the building as the ultimatum ticked by.

He said the Marines raced in through a door when they heard a shot from within the building — their signal to begin the attack.

The Clothes Spin Tale Of Pioneers

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

A lot can be learned about the health, physique and lifestyle of people who lived in British Columbia 100 years ago from the clothing they wore, says Mary McMinn, curator of costumes and textiles for the Provincial Museum history division.

On the whole the clothes they wore indicate they were not as physically fit as their modern-day counterparts, and they were shorter, mainly due to malnutrition, she said.

The textile expert showed some christening robes worn by infants before 1900.

"Most babies today would not fit into these," she said. "On an average, they were then smaller. Their heads were smaller."

Young children then were not as well fed, she explained. Mothers did not get as attached to them. They kept them at a distance because death of infants was not uncommon.

Some men's jackets reveal they were barrel-chested and had small cylindrical arms, also indicating malnutrition at an early age, she added.

McMinn has plenty of material to back up her beliefs.

She looks after the third largest collection of antique costumes in Canada. It includes 20,000 pieces of clothing, ranging from baby clothes to army uniforms, as well as such accessories as fans and purses.

There are handsome late Victoria and Edwardian ball gowns and garden party frocks, wedding gowns, men's suits, hats of all description and children's clothes.

The collection respresents clothes worn by middle income and affluent residents of B.C. from 1850 to 1960.

McMinn is assembling a collection of garments which will go on exhibition at the museum on April 15.

The display will include 11 adult pieces of clothing, eight children's, four christening robes, plus a wide assortment of accessories.

The curator, who graduated from the University of Victoria with a bachelor of fine arts degree in costumes, history and design, has been working for five years collecting, cataloguing and tracing the history of the people who wore the clothes during the last half of the 19th century.

The history of one lavish wedding gown bought in California was traced to a woman who went with her husband to the gold mining town of Barkerville. But she is a bit of a mystery. Where she ended up, nobody knows.

"Most garments have been donated," said McMinn. "People sometimes keep clothes of members of their families for sentimental reasons and pass them on. Then for one reason or another families can't look after them. So they turn them in to this department for safekeeping."

"All clothes are fumigated before they are stored in cupboards or boxes."

McMinn fingered some of the garments, noting the fine and exquisitely woven cloth.

"They don't make cloth like this today," she said. "Suits would take too long to wear out. The material is so good that you can cut it with scissors and it won't ravel. You don't have to stitch it."

She said outer garments in the 19th century were never washed because French dry cleaning was expensive.

"So they took great care of their costumes," she said. "To protect them they wore layers and layers of inner garments. They washed these."

She said cotton and silk garments were also finely woven.

"Many factors bring about changes in fashion," she said. "It usually starts in Western Europe, affecting the west coast last."

She said Queen Victoria, up to the time of the death of her husband Prince Albert, had a profound effect on fashion. Later it was Queen Alexandra, wife of Edward the VII, who influenced fashion.

NO BONUSES FOR STAFF IDEAS

Young Strikes Out Twice

Proposed bonuses to school district employees for constructive criticism and a native Indian staff hiring policy were rejected by the Greater Victoria school board Monday night.

Both proposals were made by Trustee John Young.

A reward system similar to that operating in many businesses should be set up for ideas and suggestions offered by school district employees, Young said, claiming some employees fear speaking out because they believe they may be victimized for criticizing board policy.

Young, arguing for the hiring of more Indians, said he is backed by the provincial human rights commission and the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs.

He asked trustees to change existing standards to recognize Indians as cultural teachers and bring them into the school system.

Although there are an estimated 500 Indian students in Victoria schools, there is only one Indian staff member employed in the district.

"The education of our Indian children — both in B.C. and Canada — is a national disgrace," he said.

But several trustees said Young's proposed hiring policy would create a double standard or reverse discrimination.

"You're asking the board to specify one cultural group over qualified applicants," Trustee Mark Fisher said.

Fraud: 3 Years In Jail

A 33-year-old former Victoria civil servant, who submitted invoices for horse feed for horses which didn't exist and added names to time slips in a work-incentive program, was sentenced in county court today to three years in the B.C. Penitentiary for fraud and theft.

John Peter Alexander Fraser, who studied business management for two years at Ryerson Polytechnic in Toronto, has a criminal record including fraud, false pretences, possession of stolen credit cards and forgery.

He was convicted by Judge Thomas Fisher Monday after a five-day trial which began in February.

The fraud involved $3,850 between May 1, 1975, and March 31, 1976, arising from a work activity project he supervised for the B. C. labor department employment programs branch. The theft involved $369.08.

Judge Fisher said civil servants hold a position of trust which Fraser had violated, bringing the work program into disrepute.

"The government embarks on programs, not all of which or with which the public finds favor, but they are trying to assist people find themselves in society and it is that breach (of trust) that makes your conduct here contemptible," he said.

Marine Rescue Unit Proposed For Saanich

Saanich fire department — which will lose most of its responsibility for ambulance service to a provincial agency April 1 — will be equipped to operate its own marine rescue service and water safety program if Saanich council accepts a recommendation framed by its fire and emergency committee Monday night.

The committee recommended that $11,000 be included in this year's budget to buy an inflatable boat, two motors, boat trailer and scuba gear for a three-man unit which would provide "immediate response" to any marine emergency along 40 miles of Saanich coastline.

Fire Chief Harold Gains told the committee that although there are a number of marine rescue services now available in the Greater Victoria area, there is a delay in response time.

As an example, he cited an incident six weeks ago in which three youths whose rowboat overturned in Cadboro Bay were finally rescued by a private citizen one and a half hours after the capsizing occurred.

One was virtually unconscious from loss of body heat and two had to remain in hospital for two days.

Aldermen were told that the rescue was carried out by Mark Bowers, a grade 11 student at Mount Douglas senior secondary school, while Saanich police were attempting to launch a rowboat borrowed from nearby residents.

Said Gains: "It's an embarrassing and tragic situation when the people who have gone there to perform the rescue have to tramp up and down the beach looking for a dinghy to rescue them."

In the past seven years, he said, there have been 78 marine accidents in Saanich, including three drownings and 11 near-drownings.

Gains said the purchase of scuba equipment would allow the department to assist police in underwater searches and the recovery of bodies.

By using an inflatable boat, weighing about 245 pounds, the unit would be able to launch along many parts of the shoreline other than regular launching sites, and the chief estimated that the average response time would be around 15 minutes.

Several experienced boatmen and divers within the department have expressed interest in forming the rescue unit.

Gains said if Saanich adopts the program the costs may be subsidized by the B.C. Emergency Program.

$75,000 Loss In Fire

Fire struck the Expresso Disco coffee house in Burnside Plaza twice within two hours Monday night.

The damage estimate ranges up to $75,000, mostly to the disco at 3454 Tillicum, but Saanich firemen report smoke damage to other shops in the row. A fire marshal's representative is investigating.

Firemen were called first at 11:13 p.m. after employees Debbie Soveko and Linda Wiltermuth turned on a gas-fired pizza oven to cook themselves some food as they were cleaning up at the end of the day. A pile of tablecloths, table and chair in front of the oven caught fire while the two were playing a pinball machine in the front part of the place.

Their attention was drawn by burning window curtains and when firefighters arrived the area around the oven was ablaze.

Satisifed with conditions after extinguishing the flames, firemen left about 11:50 and at 12:45 the shop was locked up by its owner, Chief Harold Gains said.

At 1:16 a.m. a passing police patrol noticed smoke coming from the building and firemen arrived to find the whole interior ablaze with the source centred behind a deep-freeze chest.

The property was insured, Gains said.

Cook Events Listed

Events relating to the bicentenary of Captain James Cook's arrival in Nootka Sound are being held in Victoria this month.

On March 18, a Captain Cook Ball sponsored by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce will be held at The Empress.

On March 18-19, the Royal Scottish Country Dance Society will present dancing at the Garth Homer Achievement Centre, 813 Darwin, starting at 8 p.m.

And on March 25, 27, 30 and April 1, the Vancouver Island Opera Society will present the Beggar's Opera at McPherson Playhouse.

TOWN TALK

Television finally has recognized one of its largest single audiences — old people.

The CBC is planning a situation comedy about a quartet of elderly people, entitled Nellie, Daniel, Emma and Ben.

An early version was tried out in January, and got a very favorable public response. According to one report, it's about "a rebellious group of oldsters who set up a communal house after escaping from a prison-like home for the aged."

Now the producers are looking for a quartet of performers for the regular series. Victorians, here's your chance.

The 67th Western Scots will have their annual reunion dinner at 6:30 p.m. March 25 at the Dominion Hotel — and it will probably be the last.

"I'm about the youngest of the survivors," says Gordon Thomas of 139 Clarence St., Victoria. "Me and another fellow are both 80 years old. We're the young ones."

Thomas said there are only 30 known survivors of the 1,200 Western Scots who went overseas from Victoria during a snowstorm 62 years ago in March of 1916, with the blessing of then premier Sir Richard McBride.

Only 12 of the 30 live in Victoria and several live south of the border.

"We got 10 out to our reunion last year and I don't know how well we will do this time. Some of the fellows find it difficult to travel," Thomas said. "This may be our last reunion."

A Times reporter grateful for the anonymity of this column is still breaking out in occasional blushes from the recollection of an embarrassing experience at the University of Victoria's open-house weekend.

The incident occurred in the Cornett Building's so-called anechoic chamber, a weirdly silent room whose walls, floor and ceiling are lined with dense sheets of sound-absorbent insulation.

The sound-proofed room is used for various psychological experiments. Apparently some human guinea-pigs say they are almost driven nuts by the pervasive quietness.

"Make yourselves comfortable, keep still and listen," the UVic tour guide advised.

The visitors did so, and almost immediately heard an ominous rumbling, gurgling noise from the aforementioned reporter's stomach.

In the ear-shattering silence, the sound resembled a storm drain in full spate.

Fortunately for the red-faced fellow, the only other occupants of the room were his three children. But they piled discomfiture on his embarrassment by collapsing in near-hysterical laughter.

He walked out of there resolved to tell Uvic what it can do with its anechoic chamber.

A party was held at the Mount Tolmie extended care hospital today to celebrate the 103rd birthday of prospector and poet George E. Winkler.

Born in Ontario March 14, 1897, Winkler has lived in British Columbia since 1900, prospecting in the southern Oakanagan area before coming to Victoria in 1908.

He is an honorary life member of the Natural History Society of Victoria and of the British Columbia and Yukon Chamber of Mines.

He reported for mining publications. His latest book of poems is The Seance Syndicate and Other Poems.

Among those sending greetings were Minister of Mines and Petroleum Resources James Chabot, the Natural History Society of Victoria and the Victoria branch of the United Nations Association in Canada.

You could call it a pubtail lounge but the provincial government refers to it as a split.

Under legislation proclaimed in 1977 hotel owners can divide their pubs in half, turning one section into a cocktail lounge.

This was the compromise agreed on after the B.C. Hotels Association campaigned for the right to sell hard liquor in beer parlors.

The first split in Victoria opened today, at the King's Hotel, which is run by Frank Burger, immediate past president of the B.C. Hotels Association. The pub had 205 seats but now 125 seats, the maximum, have been converted to a cocktail lounge, with the remaining 80 seats being a beer parlor.

Camp Follower In There Pitching

The old political trick of planting a sympathizer in the audience to throw a loaded question took on a new twist in Oak Bay on Monday.

Following questioning by students at the all-candidates' rally in the Oak Bay senior high gym, the moderator called for questions from the few adults in the audience.

The well-dressed lady in the wide-brimmed black hat jumped to her feet and asked NDP candidate Bennett Camp how his party would solve the Quebec problem.

The 47-year-old Camp provided a fairly standard reply and then added: "Thanks, Mom."

Get Together, Airlines Told

A Vancouver airline company that wants to start a new float plane service between Victoria, the Gulf Islands and Vancouver Harbor was told by the city today to go and talk to the competition.

West Coast Air Services Ltd. requested in a letter that it be allowed to operate Twin-Otters out of the Inner Harbor in much the same manner as AirWest.

West Coast told city council's planning and zoning committee that "in order to control and manage the air service requirements (in the Inner Harbor), they should all operate from a central area and preferably from a common terminal facility."

The committee agreed that the idea of a shared facility was a good one — but said that's something for AirWest and West Coast to work out themselves. It suggested the airlines get together and then come back to the city with a proposal.

AirWest is negotiating with the city to lease peoperty on a short-term basis to enable the company to move its facilities across the harbor to the old Ocean Cement site.

Generally speaking, more often than not the practice of deceptive tactics brings better results when declarer applies it, since a defender, by a deceptive play, may easily mislead his partner as to the true state of affairs. And, of course, to deceive partner is not deception — it is sabotage.

Yet situations arise where a defender deliberately (and properly) misleads partner to gain a desired result. In today's deal, we have such a case. The hand is one of the finest examples of defensive deception that I have ever seen. It arose in the Masters Pairs Championship of 1955. Sitting East was Jack Ehrlenbach, of Los Angeles.

Neither side vulnerable.
West deals.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	6 ♠	Pass	Pass Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♡.

If the reader will look at all four hands in the diagram, he will perceive that there is no legitimate way of defeating South's six-spade contract. Nevertheless, by virtue of a brilliant false-card, the East Defender succeeded in creating a trend of thought in declarer's mind which led to his defeat.

On West's opening lead of the ace of hearts, Ehrlenbach, East, dropped the king. West, of course, continued with another heart, which was ruffed with dummy's queen (to prevent the "obvious" overruff if dummy ruffed with a low trump.)

When East followed suit to the second round of hearts, declarer was certain that the only plausible justification for East's false-card was that East possessed the J-10-6 of spades. So the seven of spades was led from dummy at trick three, and the finesse taken when East followed suit with the six. West's jack captured the setting trick.

Before you criticize declarer, remember one thing: East would also have made the false-card if he had held the J-10-6 of trumps — and declarer would then have become a temporary genius instead of a gullible victim.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, March 15
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone, probably a relative, sings blues concerning money. Stand tall for beliefs, concepts. You get nothing for nothing — invest time, finances in your own project. You have something of value. Refuse to be discouraged by a "chatterbox."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Finish rather than initiate project. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Money, being rid of legal threat — these also are highlighted. Check documents. Someone took too much for granted. Now, make sure you are not taken!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cycle high, take initiative, stress personality, personal appearances. Highlight creativity, original approach — imprint your own method, style. One who previously was lukewarm is now enthusiastic. You are in driver's seat!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take one step at a time; you have choices, options. Don't be stampeded into a rush for judgment. Another Cancer — and a Capricorn — figure prominently. Teach and learn, rise above petty differences, show that you have a feel for what you do. Yes, Aquarian is in picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Fun and games could be features. Popularity increases. Creative opportunities are present. Take advantage of them. Watch your weight; become more alert to nutritional requirements. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure in your personal scenario. Your number for now is 3.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Check details. Use natural talents; be discriminating. Take nothing for granted. Someone is testing you. Display humor, be gracious, but also be strict about facts, in contrast to wishful thinking. Spotlight on superiors, climbing success ladder, community honor, civic duty.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be open to ideas, accept challenges, get concepts on paper, submit format. Member of opposite sex flatters you and means it. Travel publication, philosophical discussions and decisions are on agenda. Gemini, Virgo figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Obtain hint from Libra message. Key is to be patient, thorough, determined. Refuse to be cajoled into foolish, premature action. Major domestic change, adjustment is on agenda. Make intelligent concessions while adhering to basic budgetary rules, resolutions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): See in realistic light; tendency is to let wishful thinking substitute for logic. Accent on publicity, legal manoeuvres, partnership, special agreements, marriage. Important to be sure others understand your meanings, nuances, signals. Some deliberately misinterpret. Know it and keep chin tucked in!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 11-Jan. 19): Get affairs in order, end chaos. Your work, health, investments, security command attention. Person who whispers rumors takes time, draws from your energy. Know it and draw the line. Don't be used as a sounding board.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good lunar aspect coincides with vitality, sensuality, taking a chance on yourself — and winning! Stick with number 9. Deal with Aries, Libra persons. Open door to romance. Create, imprint style, meet people. Display dynamism of your personality.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Check tendency to go back to past. Look at future. Accent originality, pioneering spirit, Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Accent on security, property appraisal, communicating with young persons. Be finished with negotiation that has been more sound and fury than anything else.

IF MARCH 15 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have sweet tooth. You are self-indulgent, have wonderful, persuasive manner and compelling voice. You are artistic, appreciate luxury items and are spoiled by members of the opposite sex. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons play important roles in you life. October could be one of your most significant months of 1978, a year featuring reassessments, the reviewing of techniques and relationships.

Grits Gearing Up For Spring Vote

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — All signals are "go" for a spring federal election as far as Liberals are concerned after the western tour by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and members of his cabinet.

The cabinet ministers returned to the capital over the weekend and report the tour by the PM was "success". They are encouraged to go to the country this year. Trudeau returned Saturday night and other ministers returned Sunday.

June 19 is the date still most favoured by the Grits as the best day to go to the country. Another date mentioned as a possibility is July 10, but the preference is for June. The prime minister stayed out of the commons Monday resting after his strenuous tour.

No decisions on the election call will be taken by the prime minister until after the Easter recess of Parliament, expected to start March 22. It will end April 3.

During the first week of April the Liberal party is having a private survey conducted to determine the reaction of the electorate if a spring vote is called. If it is favorable or unfavorable will play a large part in dictating the election call.

In the second week of April the campaign strategy committee of the Liberals will meet and assess the situation. It will be followed by a session of the cabinet political committee.

Following those meetings Prime Minister Trudeau will decide whether to call the election June 19 or wait until later in this year, perhaps even until 1979. But Grits say, after the Liberal convention in Ottawa, the party workers are "hyped" up and ready to campaign, stirred to enthusiasm by Trudeau's style and manner of speaking at that meeting.

Clark Warming Up

MONTREAL (CP) — Opposition Leader Joe Clark delivered a campaign-style speech Monday, attacking the Liberal government and deploring what he called a lack of confidence in the country.

Addressing about 500 businessmen at a noon luncheon of the local chapter of the Canadian Club, Clark said Canadians are "seized by insecurity."

"What shocks me is to find a lack of confidence by Canadians in a country whose potential is literally unparalleled in the world today."

Canadians lack confidence in their government's financial policies, despite "the pretence of the current government that everything that can be done is being done. Nobody believes them."

He said that the average worker's income could have risen a maximum of 22 per cent during the term of the Anti-Inflation Board, "while the government of Canada spending estimates were up 44 per cent.

"There is a contest today between those who would reform, and those who would reject," he said in apparent reference to the Quebec separatist movement.

Licensed Engineers Lacking on Flights?

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Canada is engaging in an illegal practice by failing to have the mandatory licensed flight engineers on Boeing 727 crews, Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg—South Centre) said Monday.

McKenzie, armed with memoranda to back his allegation, said it was evident "the government is worried about its political skin rather than the safety of the Canadian flying public."

The memoranda between senior transport department officials state that Air Canada's Boeing 747 operation is illegal and action must be taken to avoid a political embarrassment to the government.

He gave copies of the material to reporters, saying they were obtained from concerned transport department officials.

One letter, to Air Canada from the department, gives the Crown—owned company until next October to make current employees acting in the flight engineer's position get the required licence. As of July 1, any new employees Air Canada hires for the job must have the proper license, the letter says.

The memoranda say the minimum flight crew requirements stated in the Boeing B-727 flight manual include pilot, co-pilot and flight engineer. Air Canada crews include pilot, co-pilot and second officer.

The memoranda, dated between Feb. 20, 1978, and March 9, 1978, ask the head office of the transport department's civil aviation office for guidance because of legal implications and possible embarrassment to the government. They came from regional civil aviation officers and inspectors.

Another memorandum indicates the department was aware of the situation as early as March, 1976, and suggested at the time that flight engineer requirements be filled properly that summer.

"They're not worrying about the travelling public. They're concerned about the legal aspect and whether they're going to embarrass the minister," McKenzie said in an interview.

If a Boeing 727 crashed, Air Canada's ability to collect insurance to pay damages for injuries or deaths would be jeopardized by its failure to follow the crew regulation, McKenzie said.

Ottawa Mum On Charge

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is remaining silent on details the Soviet Union is using to support its claim that Canadian agents tried to recruit a Soviet trade official here as a spy.

Izvestia, an official Soviet government newspaper, has listed details of Canadian passports, a birth certificate and a social insurance card allegedly given the Soviet official by the RCMP in attempts to secure him as a spy.

Officials in the external affairs and employment departments refused to comment Monday on these details, contained in an Izvestia article Friday.

An external affairs spokesman said the department does not want to dignify the Soviet charges by confirming or denying names and numbers on passports allegedly given the trade official, identified only as M by Izvestia.

Improved Student Loans?

OTTAWA (CP) — More students would be able to borrow more money through the Canada Student Loans Act under proposals the federal government intends to place before Parliament soon.

A government spokesman said Monday a proposal to increase the ceiling on the federal loans to $2,240 from $1,800 annually is contained in a package of amendments to the loans act which have been drafted by the government after consultation with the provinces.

Interest rates on the loans, set at nine per cent this year, generally are lower than regular bank charges for personal loans and students can have long terms to repay them.

The spokesman was confirming details of the new legislation released by the National Union of Students, an umbrella organization representing about 350,000 post—secondary students, which obtained a confidential draft copy of the bill.

However, the spokesman rejected the student organization's charge that the provinces "will use the planned loan ceiling increase to lower the level of grants to students, thus shifting more education costs to the individual student."

Other changes in the loans act include calculating loans on a weekly instead of an annual basis, eliminating a one—year waiting period for foreign students seeking financial aid, and reducing the minimum study required for eligibility to 12 from 26 weeks.

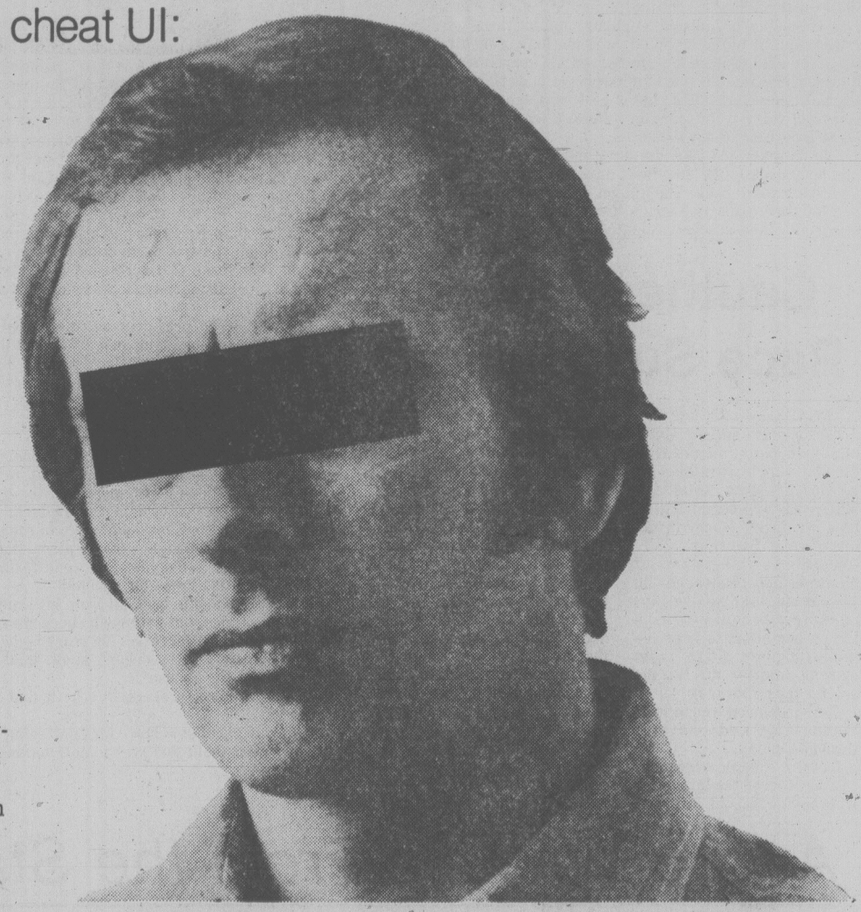
A message about those who think they can cheat UI:

"I got caught with my hand in your pocket."



What a shame.

He thought it was some sort of a game to claim a little more Unemployment Insurance than the law allowed.

Now he's in trouble. He didn't report earnings and work while getting UI.

"I mean, it was only a few bucks. You've got millions."

We don't have any money.

It all belongs to the people of Canada. And when you deliberately claim more than you're allowed by law, you're stealing from your neighbours, friends, fellow employees, employers and the Government of Canada.

It's our job to pay UI benefits fairly, efficiently and according to law. It's also our job to make sure the program is not abused by those who have little concern for their fellow citizens or the law of the land.

Getting UI when you're not available for work is abuse, pure and simple.

"Lots of people rip off UI. Why are you picking on me, and how'd you find out?"

Not so fast.

The vast majority of our claimants are completely honest. They use UI as it was intended—as a financial bridge between jobs.

And no one's picking on you. Anyone we find abusing Unemployment Insurance will be dealt with under the law.

If you're caught, money improperly claimed must be paid back in full. It could mean you pay an administrative penalty. Or you could face prosecution under the Unemployment Insurance Act, or the Criminal Code of Canada. Conviction means a criminal record.

UI employs almost 500 full-time trained claims investigators and, like any modern organization, we use new data-handling techniques to their best advantage. We match up Records of Employment with claim records to find the cheaters who don't report earnings while they're on UI.

We don't like to prosecute. We'd rather avoid that painful process by telling people that if they cheat, they'll probably be caught.

"I never really believed it was criminal."

Some people's attitudes toward Unemployment Insurance have been hard to explain.

People who would never consider shoplifting or outright robbery have been willing to hide earnings from us to get more UI benefits than the law allows. Almost as if it were socially acceptable or even fun.

Everyone knows this goes on. No one knows better than we do.

Suppose you lose your job. If you've been paying into Unemployment Insurance and you qualify, you have a right to benefits. And we will respect that right as long as you remember your obligations, too.

Your obligation is to play it straight with us. And as long as you do that, we're proud to help you.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission and the Department of Manpower and Immigration have become the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission. For a time, you'll still see our local offices identified as Unemployment Insurance offices or Canada Manpower Centres. When they're together in one location, they'll be called Canada Employment Centres.

Scott, Rutledge, Bays Sports Award Winners

Newcomers outdistanced former winners by a two-to-one margin in voting for athletic awards that were presented at the Empress Hotel Monday night during the 11th annual Greater Victoria Sports Celebrity Dinner.

Debbie Scott, the 20-year-old track star who was the choice of the voting panel last year, was again named the Victoria-area's female athlete-of-the-year.

Golfer Jim Rutledge, the 1977 national junior golf champion, was selected as male athlete-of-the-year and James Bay Athletic Association, long considered the best club rugby side in the country, got the nod as team-of-the-year.

Bowling, hockey and lacrosse also shared the spotlight with the presentation of two other coveted awards.

Bob Reid, a dedicated and long-time worker on behalf of hockey and lacrosse, was singled out as the Sportsman of the Year, while tenpin bowling official Ron Wilson was the recipient of the Saanich Kiwanis Distinguished Service Award.

Philip Delesalle, the world class gymnast who received the award in 1977, and fastball-basketball ace Bob Burrows, award-winner three years ago, were runners-up to Rutledge.

Equestrienne Bo Mearns, who earned international status during an outstanding year in jumping events at major horse shows, and tennis player Wendy Barlow, ranked first nationally in the under-18 division, were the other finalists in voting for the women's award.

Victoria Bate, team-of-the-year at two previous dinners and winner of the third successive Canadian men's fastball crown last summer, and University of Victoria Vikettes, undefeated through three seasons of play in the Canada West University Athletic Association women's basketball league, but three times unsuccessful in the national collegiate tournament, followed James Bay in balloting for team honors.

Co-sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Saanich and the Greater Victoria Sports Council, the dinner, from which proceeds will again go to assist in Kiwanis charities, featured the appearance of several guest speakers, including California sports psychologist Tom Tutko; B.C. Lions quarterback Jerry Tagge; Ron Butlin, former Western Canada Hockey League commissioner and now director of the B.C. Summer and Winter Games; John Best of soccer's Vancouver Whitecaps; professional wrestler Gene Kiniski; Dick Vertlieb of baseball's Seattle Mariners, and Victoria Cougar coach Jack Shupe.

Perhaps more than usual, selectors had a difficult time in choosing winners in for the three athletic awards.

It was difficult to ignore the respective records of James Bay, Vikettes and Bates (now Budgets).

The same situation applied in the voting for the male and female athletes.

Results of the balloting are never released but, in each category, it was extremely close.

Perhaps the most surprised award winners were Reid (see Walker's column) and Wilson.

Wilson, inducted into the B.C. bowling hall of fame in January, was instrumental in the formation of the Victoria Tenpin Association and served as secretary when the association became chartered by the American Bowling Congress in 1937.

He served as VTBA secretary until he retired in 1970.

Born in London, England, Wilson moved to Canada with his parents in 1908. They resided in Edmonton until 1929. By coincidence, that was the year that the Olympic Lanes (later to become Gibson's Bowladrome) opened.

While he started bowling in Edmonton, he didn't take up the game seriously until moving to Victoria. Wilson quickly established himself as one of Victoria's leading bowlers, averaging in the 170s and 180s.

Wilson still bowls in the men's commercial league each week and was the Times' "Bowler-of-the-Year" for the 1964-65 season and captured the men's 50 and over tournament two years ago.

BOB REID: Courteous, Devoted, Understanding

bill walker

Want to know something about sport? Call Bob Reid. Most people connected with hockey or lacrosse have done that at one time or another in the past 20 years or so.

The reply will always be courteous and understanding, despite the hour. And if he can't supply the answer to the problem immediately, he'll find out, if he can, and call back.

That's only a small part of the Bob Reid who Monday night was named Victoria's Sportsman of the Year for 1978. But it's one that is close to the media. Bob is always available. The key word is "always". And that makes some jobs easier.

For many others, it has been much more.

Bob has been connected with sport in an executive capacity in our town for many moons now and in that time he has played a prominent part in the lives of many young men. Simply put, he has been an integral part of the minor hockey and lacrosse programs, providing encouragement, leadership, improved coaching, playing opportunities, and a friendly shoulder to all.

It may not generally be recalled, but Bob was one of those instrumental in getting junior "A" hockey in the city. He helped organize the Cougars and for three years (successful, it might be noted) was the managing director of the club. Before that, he served his apprenticeship by refereeing in all levels of minor hockey, working up to the position of president. Later he was named commissioner of the city intermediate hockey league. He still holds a position on the executive.

In lacrosse, it was a similar story. He was a referee and goes back to the dust-bowl days of Stevenson Park; and that's going back. The midget division was his pride and joy then. He was a coach, manager and father-confessor all rolled into one. And he has never changed.

In 1972 came a new venture. He was named business manager of Victoria's new team in the Pacific Junior A Lacrosse League and he has held that post virtually ever since. The hours he has spent in this endeavour are countless; and just to make certain statistics were up to date on game nights, Bob would take care of that chore as well. The media in the press box had to turn no further than to the man in the corner for the latest information. A controversy? Phone him at midnight, or six o'clock in the morning, it was the same pleasant voice on the blower. "I'll call you back,"; and he was always as good as his word.

A year ago everything turned up roses for that junior lacrosse club. McDonalds won the Canadian junior men's championship and the Minto Cup. The players and the coach naturally got most of the glory, but the man behind the scene was Bob Reid. He was the glue that kept the team together in some rather stormy times earlier. McDonalds weren't always a winner but the effort was always there. Bob helped to make certain of that.

In the meantime Bob also took on the duties of vice-president of the Greater Victoria Box Lacrosse Association. Before that, he had held numerous executive positions, too extensive to mention or even classify.

Last year the B.C. Lacrosse Association finally got around to recognizing him. He was named Manager of the Year for 1977.

Joan Munroe, president of the Greater Victoria Lacrosse Association, said then: "We feel this man has done outstanding work in the fields of lacrosse and hockey for more than 20 years and his award was richly deserved."

* * *

During it all, Bob has been the quiet one. An excellent organizer, he gets things done without ruffling many feathers. And believe it! In sport, and in any town, that isn't easy. He has always demonstrated a keen talent for getting things started, for keeping them running smoothly, for arranging schedules, travel plans, handling disciplinary problems, and doing all those little things that the average sports fan takes for granted.

He's threatened to back off from his time-consuming duties many times, but with each succeeding year, especially now in junior lacrosse, the story is the same.

Call Bob Reid. If he doesn't know, he'll find out, or tell you where the answer is.

Cauthen Fights Race Suspension

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Jockey Steve Cauthen won a superior court injunction Monday which stays his suspension at Santa Anita and apparently will permit his riding Kentucky Derby-favorite Affirmed Saturday.

Santa Anita's board of stewards had suspended the 17-year-old rider for five days on charges he failed to make the proper effort to keep his mount Upper Edge from causing interference in the second race Thursday.

The suspension was to start Wednesday and continue through Sunday.

Lawyer Adolph Alexander said he secured the injunction from Judge Arnold Miller to stay the suspension pending a full hearing.

"By all means, Cauthen will be able to ride Affirmed," the lawyer said.

The three-year-old is scheduled to run in the $60,000-added San Felipe Handicap, the 1 1-16 final prep for the $150,000-added Santa Anita Derby.

Affirmed was assigned the high weight of 126 pounds for the San Felipe.

Affirmed returned to the races for the first time since winning honors as the champion two-year-old of 1977 when he won an allowance at 6½ furlongs at Santa Anita on March 8. Last year he won won seven of his nine starts.

Lafleur Breaks Out

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Guy Lafleur was a one-man scoring show for Montreal during a six-minute stretch against Minnesota North Stars in a nationally televised National Hockey League game Monday night.

But the 27-year old winger who is leading the NHL in scoring passed off his three first-period goals as merely "being in the right place at the right time."

"They just happened to be going in for me tonight," said Lafleur, whose three goals led the Canadiens to a 5-2 victory.

The North Stars momentarily stunned Montreal when Tim Young split two defenders and scored on a breakaway to give Minnesota a 1-0 lead just 41 seconds into the game.

Minnesota had visions of becoming the first team in the league to beat Montreal three times this season, but those visions quickly vanished.

Calgary Topples Portland

Calgary Wranglers got three goals in the final period and a solid goaltending performance by Warren Skorodenski to score a 5-1 upset win over Portland Winter Hawks in the only Western Canada Hockey League game played Monday.

Despite the win, which came after two losses on their current road trip, the Wranglers, with 45 points, remain in the Central Division cellar, five points behind Medicine Hat Tigers. The Winter Hawks, first in the Western Division with 81 points, have a comfortable 10-point lead over Seattle Breakers.

Calgary continues its road trip through the Western Division with a game against Victoria Cougars tonight at 8 p.m. in Memorial Arena.

Calgary's Mel Hewitt scored the only goal in the first period, then Glen Wylie scored an unassisted, short-handed goal to give the Wranglers a 2-0 lead early in the second.

Portland's Dave Ross cut the deficit to one goal later in the period, but Calgary scored three goals in the final frame to clinch the win.

Leafs Trade For Maloney

TORONTO (AP) — Toronto Maple Leafs, in a move to shore up the physical end of their game for the National Hockey League playoffs, have traded left winger Errol Thompson, two first-round draft picks and one second-round draft pick to Detroit for Red Wings captain Dan Maloney.

Maloney, 27, has 16 goals and 45 points in 66 games this season. He will be playing for his fourth NHL team. His rugged play a couple of seasons ago led to a court case after a run-in at Maple Leaf Gardens with Leafs defenceman Brian Glennie.

Maloney's best years were 1974-75 with Los Angeles Kings and 1975-76 in Detroit. He had 27 goals and 39 assists in both those seasons.

Red Wings spokesman Al Coates said Monday one of the first-round draft picks must be exercised in 1978, but the other first-round pick may be exercised at any time. The second-round draft pick must be exercised in 1979.

On the year the Wings decide to exercise the optional first-round pick, Detroit will give Toronto its second-round pick.

Thompson, 27, has been hampered by injuries after a 43-goal season in 1975-76. He has 17 goals and 39 points in 59 games this year. His best season was in 1975-76 when he had 43 goals and 37 assists.

"We had to give up a fine hockey player," Toronto General Manager Jim Gregory said Monday. "But Maloney is a strong addition in our drive for the Stanley Cup." The trading deadline for players to be eligible for post-season games is midnight Wednesday.

"Yeah, well I guess if the Doc says to stay in bed for the rest of the day, I'd better stay."

P.E.I., Saskatchewan Share Lead

Times News Services

Curling championships continued on four fronts across Canada Monday.

Skip Bob Dillon of Charlottetown won his fourth when Al Darragh of Dartmouth missed a wide-open takeout and left Dillon counting two for a 4-3 victory.

Bernie Yuzdepski of Saskatoon got a similar break when Ontario skip Bob Widdis rubbed a guard on his final shot to give Saskatchewan a point and a 5-4 victory.

Earlier Dillon defeated Barry Smith of Kelowna 6-1. Smith won his night game from Gerry Wilson of Edmonton, 8-7.

At Charlottetown, Darren Fish of Calgary won his fourth straight game to take the lead in the junior men's championship while at Chilliwack, Cathy King of Edmonton is all alone at the top of the heap in the junior women's championship with a 5-0 record.

Alberta defeated Quebec 12-5, knocked off previously unbeaten B.C. 10-3, nd doubled Ontario 8-4 in play Monday. B.C. is second at 4-1.

In the national police curling championship at Moncton, N.B., Norm Gilbertson of Saskatchewan leads with three victories. Gilbertson defeated Murray McAra of the Yukon 7-4 and Don Glinz of Winnipeg 11-3. Victoria's Bob Hawkes defeated Ontario 11-4 to even his record at 1-1.

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland (CP) — Canadian Paul Gowsell pulled out a 7-4 victory over Switzerland this morning to remain undefeated after six rounds of the world men's junior curling championship, but coach Warren Hansen was far from pleased with their performance.

"They were fortunate," said Hansen, after watching Gowsell's Calgary foursome pull out the victory with a three count in the ninth end.

Highly-regarded Scotland rebounded from an 8-5 loss Monday night to Canada and beat Denmark 7-5 in sixth-round play. In other morning action, Sweden recovered from two straight setbacks for an 8-2 win over Italy, and the U.S. struggled to a 4-3 decision over winless France.

Other fifth-round games saw Denmark beat France 8-5, Norway drub Italy 12-2, the U.S. edge Sweden 4-3, and Switzerland beat West Germany, 7-8.

Oak Bay 66 Takes Tenpin Team Title

Oak Bay 66, composed of Peter Mueller, Darlene Hotchkiss, Ray Jackson, Sharon Beyer and Kurt Beyer, captured the team title at the weekend in the city mixed team and doubles tenpin bowling championships at Mayfair Lanes.

The squad chalked up a scratch total of 2,487 and added a 696 handicap to take the crown with 3,183.

Bob Reece, who rolled 488 for three games, and Karen Reece, who bowled 569, came up with a handicap aggregate of 1,339 to claim the doubles title.

Mo King bowled the women's high series of 641 and had the top single of 234 while Henry Loo rolled the high men's series of 643 and John Wenzel came up with the high male single of 268.

Killarney Wins

VANCOUVER — Killarney tripped Victoria 4-3 in overtime Sunday to capture the "B" division title in the British Columbia open water polo championships.

Simon Fraser University collected the "A" title with an 8-6 decision over Coquitlam.

McKay Leads A's

Jim MacKay fired 16 points to spark Victoria Athletics to a 69-56 decision over Little Giant Bakeries in the opening game of their best-of-three Victoria Senior "B" Men's League semi-final series Monday night at Central Junior High School.

The other series, between Scorpions and Trilec Installations, opens tonight at 9 in Spectrum Community School.

The second games of both series are scheduled for Wednesday at Victoria High School with Scorpions and Trilec clashing at 7 and Athletics and Bakers meeting at 8:30.

In senior "C" league semi-final action Monday, Home Lumber downed Royal Roads 71-59 and Clearview tripped Fairburn, 69-60.

MARBELS SUCCEED HOME LUMBER AS HOOP CHAMPIONS

Times News Services

Montreal Marbels and Windsor AKO picked off Canadian basketball championships Saturday in St. John's, Nfld.

Marbels, with a 35-point performance from Sylvia Sweeny and 28 by Liz Silcott, defeated Hamilton Pavillion 89-55 to succeed Victoria Home Lumber as the national senior women's champions.

Home Lumber disbanded just before the start of the season.

In a consolation game to decide third and fourth place, British Columbia defeated Nova Scotia 62-43 while Manitoba dumped New Brunswick 70-56 to take fifth place.

Sheila Strike tossed in 26 points and Joanne Sargent added 12 to set the pace for BC, which trailed 28-26 at the half.

Doug Austin and John Ritchie each scored 22 points as Windsor's Fratmen edged Memorial University of St. John's 80-79 to win the junior men's crown.

British Columbia, represented by the UBC Jayvees, downed the University of Manitoba Jayvees 66-52 to take third place. Greg Puder and Bob Forsyth each scored 11 points for UBC.

Blenkinsop Lake Fight Boils Over

Saanich officials have been given until Monday to try to reach a peaceful settlement between the municipality and a few Blenkinsop Valley farmers embroiled in a mini-power struggle as to who should control the tiny but agriculturally important Blenkinsop Lake at the head of the valley.

The simmering conflict bubbled to the surface at Monday night's meeting of the Saanich environment committee, amid angry threats and accusations from the water licence holders.

Both farmer John Pendray and Saanich municipality have applied to the provincial water rights branch for licences to store water from the half-mile-long lake.

Pendray's application is for irrigation, while Saanich wants jurisdiction over the lake for flood control and watershed management purposes.

The half-dozen private water licence holders turned out Monday night to back up Pendray's application and demand that Saanich withdraw its own application.

They were clearly reluctant to accept assurances from some aldermen that the two parties' aims were not in conflict, and that Saanich had no intention of jeopardizing spring and summer use of lake water for farmland irrigation.

Presenting a petition on behalf of the group, Kenneth Patterson, 4264 Blenkinsop, said Pendray had built the present weir and operated it "to our total satisfaction" for several years.

"I will not tolerate any interference with my water licence or my right to exercise it," he added.

William Street, 1000 Beckwith, warned aldermen that the municipality stood to face costly lawsuits if it controlled the lake and failed to ensure an adequate summer supply of water for the licence holders.

Ald. Geoff Vantreight, a daffodil farmer, won the obvious appreciation of the licence holders when he said he failed to understand why Saanich needed jurisdiction.

But committee chairman Ald. John Mika said while Saanich has a responsibility to the farmers in the valley, it has a broader responsibility to the residents as a whole for flood control.

He said he hoped a settlement could be worked out before Monday's council meeting votes on the matter.

But he added: "If it comes to a case of biting the bullet on Monday, I will bite it on behalf of the municipality and not on behalf of some particular group."

Tree-Cut Reaction Sought

A watered-down version of Saanich's controversial draft legislation designed to control tree cutting in the municipality will be sent out to community groups for their reaction, aldermen decided Monday night.

But the environment committee stressed that the draft is still at a tentative stage and its publication will not imply that council endorses the bylaw in its present form.

Committee chairman Ald. John Mika, in an apparently semantics-laden explanation, told planner Dave Harper that it should be sent out "as a proposal for a bylaw, not a proposed bylaw."

The more widespread application of the earlier version has been diluted with regard to obtaining municipal permission for tree removal.

Harper said in a report that no permit would now be required for cutting five or fewer trees per year on lots of one acre or larger.

On smaller lots under one acre, no permit would be needed for cutting two or fewer trees per year.

But the prohibition on felling still applies (except for health or safety reasons) on steep slopes, near lakes or streams, or in areas where fill dumping is prohibited.

Carson Urges Sales Tax Cut

Oak Bay Socred candidate Frank Carson indicated Monday he might be willing to cause a few ripples in the government backbenches if elected in the March 20 by-election.

Replying to a student's question on how to solve the high student unemployment rate, Carson said the economy should be stimulated by encouraging consumer spending.

To accomplish this, he said the Socred government should eliminate the sales tax on articles purchased for use in the home and pledged to work toward this if elected.

The Social Credit government raised sales tax 40 per cent shortly after taking power.

NDP candidate Bennett Camp was applauded when he accused the Social Credit government of failing to recognize that young people are a valuable natural resource.

Camp said the $35 million the NDP put into a special fund for youth employment programs has all but been spent by the Socreds, but they haven't added to the fund.

Liberal candidate Graham Ross-Smith countered that changes will come with good money management by the provincial government — management which is a little more difficult than running a used car lot. (The comment, which was a crack at car dealer candidate Carson, drew laughter from the students.)

Conservative candidate Vic Stephens addressed himself entirely to the question of Canadian unity.

He said it is foolish for English Canadians to try to think of what to give Quebec Premier Rene Levesque to get him to change his mind because he has already said he wants nothing less than to take Quebec out of Confederation.

The people of B.C. instead should express their feelings on a one-to-one basis with the people of Quebec who want to stay in Canada, Stephens said.

Socialist Party of Canada candidate Larry Tickner thinks tanks will be rolling throughout the country before the economy does.

Why else would the Canadian government purchase rubber-tired military tanks from Germany, he asked.

Tickner says such tanks are useless in country terrain, but perfect for city streets which will be rife with social unrest as the economic situation deteriorates.

Camosun Seeks Space In School Board Office

The Greater Victoria school board will decide if it has room for Camosun College somewhere in its office complex.

A committee of trustees and administrators will study the college's urgent request for 10,000 square feet of space, the board decided Monday night.

The college council, faced with space problems, wants to lease or buy the media wing of the board's Paul Building.

If the board turns down the request, the college council and the education ministry will have to do some fast footwork to avoid closure of the campus by the fire marshall's office.

School superintendent Allan Stables said his only source of information has been the local newspapers.

"Form a committee to examine the situation and find out what the hell is going on," Stables told the trustees Monday night.

The college is under orders from the fire marshal to clear the corridors of its Landsowne campus and needs room for student study areas and storage.

Plans for a new building at Lansdowne and more than $1 million worth of renovations have been approved by Education Minister Pat McGeer, but the college must find additional space now to keep operating.

Emily Walker Wins Opener In Speech Test

Emily Walker of the First Canadian Toastmaster Club No. 38 gave a speech titled Primitive or Practical to win the first preliminary round of the Golden Gavel Competition, a public speaking contest sponsored by the Toastmaster Clubs of Greater Victoria.

Runner-up Ron Maxymyshyn spoke about Jargon.

Donor Count Reaches 203

A clinic was held at HMCS Naden today and the blood drive continues Wednesday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Student Union Building on the University of Victoria campus.

Man Killed

CHEMAINUS (CP) — Jagjit Singh Mandair, 26, of Duncan, was killed early today in an industrial accident at Nanoose Forest Products here.

Leaking Fuel Ignites Car

A leaky fuel line spilled gas on a hot engine Monday causing $750 damage to a car in Victoria West.

City firemen went to Craigflower and Rayner at 9 a.m. where they found a 1966 Chevrolet owned by R. J. Bridges, 1854 St. Ann, on fire.

Spanish Banquet Fit for a King

MADRID — The king and queen of Spain threw a banquete grandioso Monday night for Gov.-Gen. and Mme. Jules Leger, asking in return that Canada join with Spain in promoting "freedom and respect for human rights, individual and collective."

The Canadian state visitor, responding under the glitter of 15 chandeliers in the banquet hall of the royal palace, agreed that Canada is eager to encourage democratic liberties.

King Juan Carlos, actively overseeing his country's return to parliamentary democracy after the death of dictator Francisco Franco in late 1975, suggested Spain might have something to learn from the Canadian political experience.

Also tentatively agreed upon during the first day of a two-day state visit by Leger are proposed visits to Canada by the king and by Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez, plus exchange visits by parliamentarians of both countries.

The late-night banquet in the 250-year-old Palacio Real capped a day that began with an official welcome for the Legers. The king's mounted lancers and royal footguard were on parade while the royal artillery fired a 19-gun salute.

Eighty guests dined on shrimp, Castillian veal and five fine wines — plus a brandy kegged in 1883 — at a single table 120 feet long. The massive dining table stole attention even from the baroque gilt-and-marble surroundings, with golden cutlery and an array of five crystal wine goblets at each place. The centre line of the table was laden with hundreds of red, yellow and pink roses.

Flynt Worse

ATLANTA — Sex magazine owner Larry Flynt, wounded in an ambush attack last week, has pneumonia and is bleeding internally, says a spokesman at Emory University Hospital where Flynt remains in serious condition.

The announcement came as Gwinett County police appealed for help in tracking down the gunman who shot Flynt and his lawyer on March 6.

The Adult Film Association of America offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the shooting. The Gwinnett County Commission previously posted a $5,000 reward.

Marriage Would End Dancing Days

BRASILIA — Prince Charles does not plan to marry this year, he told a news conference Monday.

He said he had been told that 1978 would not be a good year for him romantically and added with a smile that if he were married he could no longer dance the samba — as he has done in Rio de Janeiro with girls from a samba school.

He told reporters his visit is not primarily commercial. He said he hopes he has "done a little bit to strengthen relations between Brazil and Great Britain."

He added: "I shall go back and do my best to convince British businessmen that this country has a very encouraging and exciting future economically."

He will visit an agricultural research centre today and play polo before attending a British embassy reception.

Chaplin Claims Hoaxes?

GENEVA — Police say they have received telephoned ransom demands from several persons claiming to have stolen the body of comedian Charlie Chaplin, but that the calls appear to be hoaxes.

The coffin and body were taken from a small cemetery at Corsier March 1.

Examining Magistrate Jean-Daniel Tenthorey said calls have come both to Chaplin's mansion at Corsier and to investigators.

"But we cannot say that any of them are authentic until we get some proof they are actually holding the body," Tenthorey said.

He said the callers were being told to prove their claims. "We've asked them for the number on the coffin or characteristics of the body" he said. "But nearly always they have immediately hung up the telephone."

He said the robbers may have reburied the body.

There were unconfirmed reports that two Americans were planning to survey the region in a helicopter equipped with infra-red cameras to spot freshly-turned earth.

Chaplin, who moved to Switzerland in 1952, died Christmas Day at the age of 88. His estate has been estimated at more than $100 million.

Mitchell Wins Extension Of Medical Furlough

WASHINGTON — Former U.S. attorney-general John Mitchell received another extension of his medical furlough from prison Monday, guaranteeing he will remain free at least until March 27. Mitchell was granted temporary freedom from prison on Dec. 27 to undergo an operation for implanting an artificial hip, but his doctors discovered an aneurism and he underwent surgery for that condition on Jan. 24.

LONDON — Ku Klux Klan faction leader David Duke of New Orleans, La., was served with a deportation order Monday.Duke, 27, had evaded police for a week and was handed the order outside a pub in Ickenham, northwestern London, where he was being interviewed by The Daily Express. Express reporter Bob McGowan said the officer who served the order told Duke: "Mr. Duke, you've led me a merry chase, but now I will serve this order on you." Duke then ran out of the pub with the officer chasing him. After a brief pursuit down a dark alley, the officer led Duke back and made him take the document, McGowan said. The reporter said Duke shouted "God save Britain!" and "God save the Queen!"

VATICAN CITY — Pope Paul cancelled his weekly general audience today because he has influenza. Vatican officials said the Pontiff had been advised by his doctors to cancel the audience to save strength for the upcoming Easter celebrations.

TOKYO — Prince Hitachi, the second son of Japan's Emperor Hirohito, will leave March 29 for a two-week informal tour of the United States, the imperial household agency said. Prince Hitachi, an honorary member of the American Association for Cancer Research, will attend the association's annual meeting in Washington between April 5 and 8.

LONDON — A London journalist who described on television and in a forthcoming book how he helped his terminally ill wife commit suicide faces possible prosecution. Police Monday referred the case of Sunday Times journalist Derek Humphry, 47, to the director of public prosecutions, who must decide whether to charge him with aiding a suicide. "If the director decides to prosecute I shall plead guilty and ask for the mercy of the court," Humphry said Monday. "I have made this confession in an attempt to change the law on mercy killing."

Doctor Looking For Old Air

SEATTLE — Dr. Reinhold Rasmussen is gasping for air and he prefers that it be at least 50 years old.

He has sampled air from old wine bottles, tires from ancient tractors and sealed model-ship bottles in his elusive quest.

"We became experts at telling the ages of toilets because we were interested in the air sealed in the floats," Rasmussen said.

Rasmussen and his group from the Oregon Graduate Centre near Portland are seeking uncontaminated old air to determine how badly man has fouled the atmosphere.

Specifically, they are looking for air sealed off before 1930 to determine whether fluorocarbons, which came into industrial use about five decades ago, are also created spontaneously in nature.

Sensational Smoking Experience

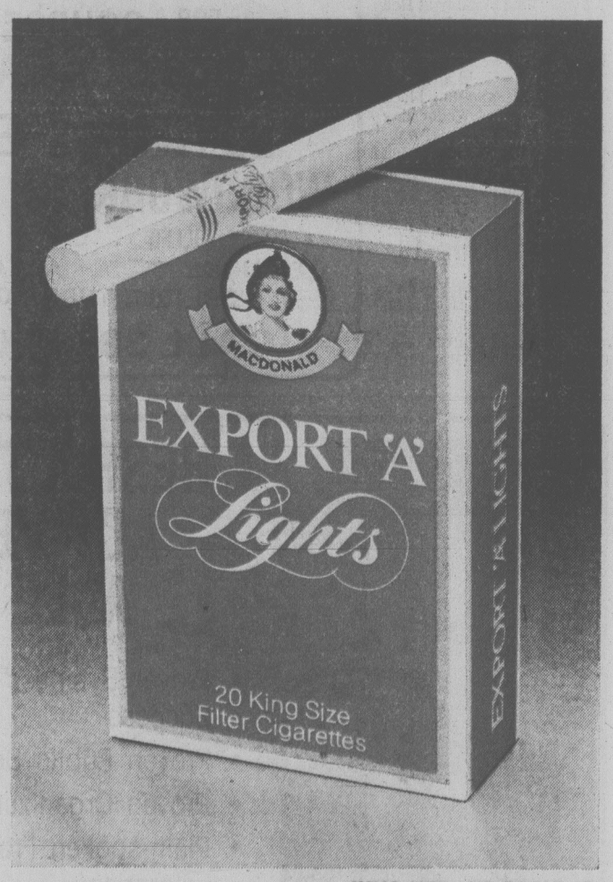
From "Gentled Tobacco" comes Export 'A' Lights, for smokers who have gone from strong to mild and are still unsatisfied.

In all our years of cigarette making (we started in 1858), we have never made a cigarette like Export 'A' Lights.

We took the finest, full-flavoured tobaccos available. Then gentled and blended them as never before, to produce total taste combined with a light smoke. All richness in, all harshness out. Not just another cigarette, but a truly sensational smoking experience with gentle strength.

If strong cigarettes are too much for you, and mild cigarettes not enough, you owe it to yourself to try Export 'A' Lights.

It's the one cigarette that's just right.



KING SIZE AND REGULAR

Export 'A' Lights.

The first just right cigarette.

140 Seiners Waiting for Herring

About 140 seiners are awaiting the reopening of the herring fishery in the Barkley Sound area.

The fishery was opened Friday and closed hurriedly after it was found the roe was immature. Only 2,000 tons were taken.

Fisheries field operations director Dick Crowther, who returned to Vancouver from Barkley Sound on Monday, said some fishermen are making abusive phone calls to the federal boats over the delay.

Crowther said the fisheries patrol vessels Tanu, Howie and Comox Post, along with about a third of the seiners, have been monitoring Barkley Sound for the past three weeks. He said between 40,000 and 50,000 herring are estimated to be in Imperial-Eagle Channel, in the outer reaches of Barkley Sound.

George Hewison, general manager of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, said some fishermen, upset at the cost of waiting for the Barkley Sound fishery to open, have moved to other areas like Bella Bella, Thompson Sound and Stryker Bay.

Meanwhile, the 56-foot herring seiner Cape Calvert this morning sank off Schooner Cove near Nanoose, north of Nanaimo.

She ran aground about 8:20 a.m. Monday and two tugs, Don Marel and C.D. Hemison, pulled her off the rocks before she went down today.

A Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre spokesman at CFB Esquimalt said the crew of five was taken off safely and there were no injuries.

CRTC Postpones Pay-TV Proposal

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal regulatory agency on broadcasting has rejected for the second time the introduction of a national pay-television system — at least for the present time.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission said in making the report Monday the federal government should start work now to develop a national pay-TV policy for the future.

Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve, who initiated the latest study, had no comment on the report which said all proposals for starting pay-TV were turned down because they did not meet legal broadcasting objectives.

The report was welcomed, however, by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, the CBC and other groups who have opposed introduction of pay-TV.

The objectives not met in the applications include Canadian content regulations and requirements that broadcast outlets use mainly Canadian talent and resources, the CRTC said.

The CRTC said there is also no compelling public demand for pay-TV at this time.

A national survey of 2,289 cable TV subscribers showed that 32 per cent of the respondents said they would likely subscribe to various pay-TV systems, but only 38 per cent of those surveyed had ever heard of pay-TV.

Ernie Steele, president of the CAB, which represents about 90 per cent of the country's private radio and TV stations, said the group "is very relieved" that the CRTC tied pay-TV to the objectives of the Broadcasting Act.

As well, pay-TV would have further aggravated present broadcasting problems of fragmented audiences and the steady diet of U.S. TV shows, Steele said.

Many pay-TV proposals called for systems built up on re-runs of current top U.S. movies.

The CBC was also pleased with the report, saying the potential audience for Canadian shows would have diminished had a national pay-TV system started.

Garden Plots Available

Allotment garden plots again are available for Greater Victoria residents wanting to grow fresh vegetables but are without land.

The 1,000 square foot plots rent for $20. Former plot holders have first option with the rest going on a first-come basis.

Information is available at the provincial government ministry of agriculture offices in the Legislative Buildings. (I. W. Keepence, 387-5121 or 479-8421).

Judge Cites Breach of Trust

Dean Wesley Bowman, 207 Mary, was charged with two counts of perjury and was remanded in custody until next Monday for election of his trial method.

Bowman is charged in connection with his own trial Feb. 13 on a charge of breach of probation and the March trial of 20-year-old Steven John Thomas Johnson, who was facing an armed robbery count. Bowman was giving evidence in that trial March 7 under the Canada Evidence Act in connection with a hold-up Nov.7 at the T and P Grocery, 2201 Chambers.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told Judge William Ostler that both charges stem from evidence concerning the robbery. Johnson was acquitted in Victoria county court after Judge E.J.C. Stewart directed there was no evidence against Johnson.

In the family division of provincial court, chief provincial court judge Laurence Brahan ordered a 15-year-old released in his own undertaking until March 30.

The juvenile, whose name cannot be published, is charged with attempted murder in connection with a March 4 knife incident at the Expresso Disco, 3454 Tillicum.

A psychiatric report ordered by Brahan one week earlier when the juvenile first appeared in court did not arrive for Monday's appearance.

A 21-year-old man was charged in connection with two weekend purse-snatchings and was remanded until next Monday for election and plea.

John Victor Klus, 2006 Fernwood, was charged with attempted robbery with violence in connection with an Oak Bay incident Saturday and with theft under $200 in connection with a Victoria incident the same day.

Court was informed another man is being sought in Vancouver.

Klus was released on his own recognizance with one or two sureties in the amount of $1,000.

One of two teen-agers being sentenced on two break-ins received a nine-month jail term.

Richard Harold Scrimbit, 19, of 3972 Saltan in Duncan, was handed the jail term by Ostler, who also placed the youth on 18 months probation.

Scrimbit, 17-year-old John Edward Howe, 181 Regina, and 19-year-old David Edward Ferguson, 3241 Wascana, pleaded guilty March 9 to break-ins Feb. 14 at J.P. Expresso, 3454 Tillicum, and the Greater Victoria Baseball Association concession stand at Hampton Park.

Lang told the court Scrimbit was serving a nine-month sentence imposed March 3 in Duncan for another breaking and entering as well as auto theft.

Howe received a suspended sentence, was placed on 18 months probation, had a 10 p.m. curfew (11 on Saturdays) imposed for six months, ordered not to associate with either Scrimbit or Ferguson during his probation and told to attend the Metchosin Camp program.

Ferguson has been remanded until March 31 for sentencing by Ostler.

Howard Jeffrey McCanne, 36, of 1918 Fernwood, was given concurrent, 20-day sentences after pleading guilty to causing a disturbance by using obscene language and consuming liquor in a public place.

McCanne, who has also appeared in court recently under the names John Glen Poirier and John Glen Walter, was charged after an incident Sept. 19 aboard the motor vessel Mayne Queen which resulted in B.C. Ferries officers handcuffing him and taking him off the vessel.

Two businessmen were sent to jail Monday for a year after a judge told them they were guilty of a breach of trust and "our entire business community is founded on trust."

Richard Brian Higgins, 42, of Saanich, president of Unity Bank from 1972 to 1975, and unemployed since then, and William Alfred Eastgate, 44, of Central Saanich, president of Seaboard Enterprises Ltd. and several related companies in the land development business, were found guilty March 1 after an 18-day trial of wilfully attempting to obstruct justice and corruptly offering or agreeing to accept a secret commission.

Unity Bank, created originally in Ontario in 1972, was absorbed by Provincial Bank last year.

Both men were sentenced to nine months in jail on the secret commission offence, a rarely-laid charge in the Criminal Code, and three months for wilfully attempting to obstruct the course of justice by attempting to conceal the secret commission offence. The terms will be served consecutively.

Maximum sentence for a secret commission offence is two years and maximum sentence for the attempt to obstruct justice offence is 10 years.

Judge Peter Millward said both men acted in accordance with generally-accepted standards of conduct in the business community for "the great majority" of their careers and that they had achieved "considerable success" and "positions of relative eminence in the community."

But he had also considered that it was this eminence which gave them the opportunity to do what they did.

He noted that nothing was lost to any third party and that it was simply an agreement to split anticipated profits, from a land development on Doney Road in Central Saanich.

Millward also said both men have "suffered very considerably" in both their business and personal affairs from what had happened and that there would be a serious effect on their families and business associates.

Higgins' lawyer Peter Freeman said his client is "a penniless person" who has "suffered public disgrace and humiliation from his conviction."

He described Higgins as a man "who was tremendously successful and who is now utterly destroyed."

Eastgate's lawyer Derek Brindle said his client had a reputation for honesty, that he has suffered depression and strain, and "all he has built for the future has been lost to him." He said nothing was lost by anyone except Higgins and Eastgate in what happened.

Crown counsel Mike Hutchison said jail was an appropriate sentence and it was the high reputation of the convicted persons which made available to them the opportunity to commit the offences.

He emphasized deterrence to others, especially the business community, so that breach of trust will not be tolerated and will be dealt with seriously.

Eastgate was convicted of offering Higgins, an agent of Unity Bank, an opportunity to participate and share without personal investment or efforts in the business ventures of Seaboard Enterprises Ltd. and W.A.E. Holdings Ltd., resulting in profit to Higgins of $110,000, as consideration for Higgins showing favor to Seaboard and W.A.E. Holdings in their credit applications to Unity Bank.

Higgins was convicted of agreeing to accept this offer. The offences occurred between Jan. 1, 1973, and April 30, 1977.

The wilful attempt to obstruct justice occurred between April 26 and April 30, 1977.

During the trial, a profit-splitting memorandum was shown to the court in which Higgins and Eastgate agreed to share 50-50 in half the profits of a Central Saanich housing development. They said the agreement was made in December, 1974, as an incentive for possible future employment locally of Higgins.

But the agreement was dated May 16, 1973, the day after Higgins authorized a loan from Unity Bank to Seaboard Enterprises of $425,000.

Disarmament Splits Oak Bay Aldermen

Diabetes Month got unanimous support at Oak Bay council Monday night but Disarmament Weekend won only majority support.

Council routinely gave approval to proclaim March as National Diabetes Month, in response to a request from the Canadian Diabetic Association.

But a request from the Victoria Ad Hoc Coalition for Disarmament for March 31-April 2 to be proclaimed Disarmament Weekend was approved only on a 4-to-2 vote with one abstention.

Ald. John Goult said he favored disarmament but Canada acted from necessity and wasn't imperialistic.

GOULT
. . .no support

"I'm sorry, I just can't support it."

Ald. Doug Watts said both sides need to disarm carefully but he didn't favor one side disarming unilaterally.

The letter from the coalition, however, does not advocate unilateral disarmament and in fact, at one point, refers to "the need to support disarmament on a global scale."

Vandalism Concern At Lafayette Park

A committee of Oak Bay council and the recreation commission will look into problems of vandalism at Lafayette Park.

A petition signed by 58 persons said that on six occasions since last October vehicles have been deliberately driven across the turf of the south Oak Bay park leaving deep ruts.

It was suggested that well-placed beach logs or boulders might solve the problem.

Recreation superintendent Duncan Russell, in a report, said the concern is valid but the problem is more difficult to resolve.

"If we are to maintain esthetically pleasing park areas we must be sure the peripheral treatment is attractive," he said in a report to administrator Jim Craven.

"It should not simply be resolved on the basis of the problem raised in such a manner as to affect the attractiveness of the park area.

"I think we should make a commitment to these residents that on or before July 1, 1978, we will design and install a barrier so as not to allow cars to run across the park area."

In other business, council voted down a proposal to rezone 2275 and 2295 Oak Bay Avenue from retail to single-family.

But a proposal to change a disused service station through renovations to permit certain uses by Saunders and Hitchman car dealer was tabled for more information after a public hearing.

The company wants to use the property at Cranmore Road and Cadboro Bay Road for repairing and cleaning of automobile upholstery, cleaning car interiors and engines, waxing and polishing used cars and dewaxing and polishing new cars, replacing and cleaning auto glass and painting, repairing and replacing tires on cars.

A proposal to develop 1.03 acres at 1540 York Place into 15 two-bedroom attached housing units was referred to council acting as committee of the whole. The land is vacant and zoned single family.

A move by Ald. John Goult to have the future of the municipally-owned Riding Academy land on Cedar Hill Cross Road debated at the next council meeting was defeated. Other council members preferred to wait for a consultant's report on various possible uses of the land which will be debated at the time.

Diversion Featured

The Community Diversion Program of Victoria will be featured in the CBC—TV program Man Alive at 10:30 p.m. next Monday.

Local residents, police, regional Crown counsel, prosecutors and Diversion staff have been interviewed.

The program will explain Diversion and its policy. Among topics to be discussed are restitution, reconciliation, victim's anger and the value of community involvement in local justice programs.

Host and interviewer is Roy Bonisteel and the producer is Sig Gerber.

The Diversion Centre at 810 Gorge Road East has dealt with 1,200 juveniles and adults since it opened in October, 1974.

Having committed minor offences, they are referred to the centre by Crown prosecutors and municipal police departments to take part in various community programs.

Island Spraying Opposed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Society for Pollution and Environmental Control (SPEC) has asked Premier Bill Bennett to halt the spraying of alder trees in a 1,000-acre area near Vancouver Island's northern tip.

SPEC asked Bennett in a telegram to cancel plans by Rayonier Ltd. to spray the herbicides 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T in late March or early April near Holberg to control trees the company says are competing with commercially viable trees.

"SPEC is concerned people's well water will be contaminated. These chemicals cause cancer and birth defects," said Merriam Doucet, chairman of the SPEC pesticide committee.

She said Holberg area residents have told SPEC that they are worried about their health and the health of their children if the spraying is done.

"We are also hoping that Rayonier will recognize its responsibility to the well-being of people in areas where it is logging and voluntarily call off the spray program," Ms. Doucet said, adding that the chemicals will add to the forest fire hazard.

Wharf Job Let

A 'Trade Secret' for Making Furniture

If you've ever tried to construct a table from a massive slab of log, you know there's more to the project than meets the eye. That is, a thick and imposing slice of wood cut diagonally from a tree trunk may look as solid as granite the day it's buzzed out, but there's an almost 100 per cent chance it will crack or warp if its fibres dry and shrink.

Ah, but there's a very simple "trade secret" known to the folks who make this kind of furniture for a living. A secret that will keep your sections of timber from cracking after you've worked with them.

The secret? Cut your slabs only from old, hardwood logs that have lain out in the woods so long that mushrooms have started to grow on them. Mushrooms growing on a dead and downed tree trunk seem to indicate the log has already naturally cured well past the warping and cracking stage.

Another point: once a tree has been down long enough for ground fungi to grow on it, the splintered end of its trunk will probably have rotted so much that you can poke a finger right through that part of the wood. Don't let that discourage you. Chances are good that this is only another sign that the main body of the log is just starting to really cure well. Use a crosscut or chain saw to slice out the lengthwise slab or oval you want. If the wood is solid all the way through where you made your cut, it doesn't really matter what the log looks like on its end.

Take your slab home and — just to make sure — let it age in a dry place at room temperature for an additional two months. If it hasn't cracked by them, it probably won't.

Pry the bark off the slice of timber and dig out whatever rot may have started around its edges. If there are any minor cracks in the wood's surface that won't show on the finished piece of furniture, fill them with epoxy that has been tinted brown. If the cracks will show, save some of the finest sanding dust from the project, stain and sift it, and then mix the dust with clear enamel. Apply this filler in thin layers and let it dry for a full day between coats.

When the filled cracks are ready, begin working the surfaces of your slab with a sander. (Start with an old disc, belt or pad of rather coarse paper, and — as they wear out — work your way down to a very fine grade of sandpaper.)

Seal the sanded slab with any good commercial wood sealer. If it raises the grain, sand the wood again with a fine paper and apply another coat of sealer. Continue this process until your table is perfectly smooth. When ready, wax the slab with a true paste wax.

Slab tables look best when their legs are put on at "splayed out" angles. And the bigger the table, the more those legs should splay. Experiment a little — try different legs at various angles before you make a final decision.

Most lumberyards and many hardware stores stock ready-made birch, maple and cherry legs for this kind of project. Or you can carve, whittle or turn your own legs on a lathe.

Try legs 17 inches long for cocktail tables and 22-inchers for end tables. The best way to mount them is by simply drilling holes into the underside of the slab top that the upper ends of the supports just fit into nicely. That way there's no messy glue or screws that can get lost to fool with and the legs can be removed for moving and storage.

Different Types

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Glass-fibre insulation comes in two different types—batts are insulation blankets that are unrolled between joists in attic floors, and loose-fill is chopped-up insulation that must be hand poured or pneumatically blown into place. Variations can occur in the installed thickness of loose-fill that can affect its performance.

Dear Mike: Our 1969 Datsun pickup drifts all over the road. The steering has been checked and tightened, and there's no play in the wheel. I've replaced the standard tires with new, larger, fiberglass-belted radials, but to no avail. Under certain road conditions, the pickup whips back and forth, so it's quite hazardous. What's the solution? — ALL OVER THE ROAD

Dear All: Have a good front-end shop check alignment and the condition of your entire front suspension system, including all rubber bushings.

Dear Mike: I'm having brake problems with my 1971 Cadillac. On short trips, the brakes are fine and easy to push. But after an hour or so of driving, I get power failure. When I show to a stop from the highway, the pedal gets very hard to push. This happens most noticeably when I reach about 5 mph. I've replaced the power booster unit.—HARD BRAKES

Dear Hard: Sounds like a vacuum leak in the line to your booster. Check it with a vacuum gauge at the booster end of the hose. Also check the little Teflon button where the hose plugs into the booster.

Dear Mike: The V-6 engine in my 1977 Buick Century dies frequently when it's cold. The dealer tells me this in normal and the remedy would be illegal. He suggests I warm up the engine 3-5 minutes before starting out. This sounds like a lot of hogwash to me, because even the old Stanley Steamer didn't take that long to warm up. I've gotten into the habbit of driving in the lowest gear until the motor gets warm. This, of course, shoots the gas mileage, but what do you suggest I do — short of ditching the car?—FRUSTRATED DOCTOR

Dear Frustrated: I've said it plenty of times before, but here goes again. It IS best to let an engine warm up before driving away. I can't tell you how long, but always let it idle as slowly as possible for at least a couple of minutes. Your revving the engine in low gear is causing premature wear. Raw gasoline washes down the cylinder walls, and the diluted oil can't prevent scoring.

Dear Mike: I recently bought a new 1978 Fairmont. I've been transferred to England and want to take the car with me. I hear, though, that unleaded gasoline isn't available overseas. Will regular gasoline hurt the engine?—GOING

Dear Going: No, not the engine, but it'll kill your catalytic converter. Before you go, have the following modifications made, then change everything back when you return: 1) exchange your small-necked fuel filler with a larger, conventional one; 2) remove your catalytic converter and replace it with a length of tailpipe. Save the converter for your return. After you re-install it, drain your gas tank and fuel lines before refilling with unleaded gasoline.

Soap-Saver Confesses

By SANDRA CLARK
New York Times

NEW YORK — Soap-sliver saving is making a comeback. An advertisement here says a mail-order house is selling a Soap Mold, which recycles slivers and broken pieces into whole new full-size bars. "Still throwing away small 'usable' soap slivers?" it reads. "Don't!"

There it is — the parental injunction come to life, the waste-not-want-not ethic, the penny-saved-is-a-penny-earned prime directive of bourgeois heritage. My hand is on my chequebook; it's a seductive offer. If I sent for it, I could melt down all my wasteful broken bits, consolidate my virtuous good-little-girl feelings, return to the dependable precepts of my childhood. I would be frugal and saving and careful and all that my mother hoped I would be. That's good value for only $2.49 plus 30 cents postage.

When I was a young housewife, I zealously followed my parents' teaching and example. In with the other cleaning supplies under the kitchen sink was an empty, wide-mouthed jar cannibalized from Murphy's Oil Soap. Into this, I threw our assorted left-over soap bits — salmon-pink shower Lifeboy, piney wash-basin Palmolive, bathtub floating Ivory, brick-red sink Brillo, and strong brown heavy duty Fels-Naptha.

Every so often, when a sufficient accumulation of soap slivers was in conjunction with my inner need to reaffirm my adherence to the parental code, I melted them down into a sticky multi-colored jelly . . . which I then abjured the every-other-week cleaning woman to use up.

Our newlywed limited-income made economic rationalization for all this busy work, so for some years I was allowed to obsess in peace. Saving soap slivers is, when you think of it, next to shopping supermarket specials, banking a little nest egg every week and refinishing Salvation Army furniture.

As our finances improved, however, and trivia time grew scarce, I found it expedient to try to convince my mother that it was okey, even chic, to throw away soap slivers. A moment came when she conceded that if we could afford to send our children to summer camp, we could afford to throw away even as much as a dollar's worth of soap per year. This changing value eventually merged with our more visibly affluent image. Throwing away soap slivers is, when you think of it, next to installing wall-to-wall carpeting, driving a station wagon, and buying life insurance. These are things for fond parents to exult in, to tell to their Weight-Watcher's class; "Our daughter is doing well. She's been to Yugoslavia, and she throws away soap slivers."

Thus undercut by fickle fashion, my loathsome economies were driven underground. I became a closet soap-sliver-saver. First, I moved the soap-sliver jar from its too public position among the cleaning supplies to a more discreet spot in the bathroom cabinet. Then, when I could get my hands on soap slivers, and I was sure no one was looking, I tucked them into my jar, pennies in my piggy bank.

I credit my children and their generation, sneaky little throwbacks, with engineering the return to the save-a-bag-save-a-tree ethic of their forebears. Though they cite ecology, not economy, I'm no t fussy. All I know is that now I can take my soap-sliver collection out of hiding and openly indulge in messing around with it. Saving soap slivers is, when you think of it, next to recycling paper, buying non-aerosol sprays, conserving gas and patchwork quilting. These are things for fond offspring to exult in, to tell to their kayaking group: "Mom's very with it. She's into organic kohlrabi, and she saves soap slivers."

She Wasn't Fazed

IPSWICH, Mass. (AP) — Anne Babson, a five-foot-seven, 150-pound eighth grader, played on her junior high school football team. "The game is not as rough, not as physically tough, as I thought it would be. One thing that really helped was the boys accepted me right off. They would defend me against hecklers, many of them girls."

COLLECTOR'S CORNER BY TOM BATESON

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I have three adorable grandchildren, ages 6, 8 and 9. I love them all dearly (and equally) but they are extremely jealous of each other, and there's always a fight for my attention when I visit them.

I am careful never to bring one a gift (even on birthdays) without bringing a gift for the other two. I am also very careful not to praise one too much in the presence of the others, and I never make comparisons.

However, the rivalry and jealousy persists. I'm sure other grannies have the same problem. Have you any suggestions? TORN IN THREE

DEAR TORN: Sibling rivalry has been with us since Jacob and Esau (not to mention Cain and Abel), but you can minimize the competition by spending time with each child individually — instead of trying to divide yourself into three parts, like Gaul.

DEAR ABBY: It's getting so I hate to go out with my husband. He's 32 and I'm 31, and all he wants to do is go to X-rated movies and look for girls to pick up on the way home. He says he gets real turn-on thinking about being with me and another woman.

We never have actually picked up a girl, but after every movie we just drive around, wasting baby-sitter money, looking for one.

I hate to say no to him because that gets his "poor me" attitude going and then he is unbearable.

He is a college-educated man working in a respected field. Does he need help or do I? TURNED OFF.

DEAR TURNED OFF: He definitely needs help. And if you go along with his kinky ideas, you do too.

DEAR ABBY: May I speak on behalf of a group of people who sometimes have difficulty speaking for themselves? The group I'm speaking of (and for) is usually sensitive, shy, insecure and gentle. Their problem? They are QUIET. They simply find it difficult to speak up in a crowd or to make small talk.

I just returned from a class I joined as part of my continuing battle to overcome this problem. While in class, someone embarrassed me by saying, "Gee, you're quiet!" I am aware of that fact, and commenting on it publicly is just as rude as saying to someone, "Gee, you talk a lot!"

Abby, please tell your readers that many quiet people have deeply rooted problems that they are trying hard to overcome. If people really want to help a quiet person, they should ask him a question, thus giving him a chance to talk. But never make an issue of his quietness. SUFFERING (QUIETLY).

DEAR SUFFERING: Thanks for taking the time and trouble to speak out for the quiet ones.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TAMMY IN TORONTO: No matter what your past has been, you have a spotless future.

LIQUID DIET 'JUST NOT SAFE'

I would like to address myself to the doctors who are making so much of a fuss about the liquid protein diet. I have lost 47 pounds and have never been in better health. — Mr. T. M,. Calif.

It must be gratifying to lose that much weight and to be in such excellent form. You, however, are a statistic of one. This does not mean that you are the only one who has lost weight successfully on the liquid protein diet. It does mean that one single person is not in a position to generalize about such a widespread scientific program. Because, as you are one who has had success, there is also one (and more) who are reported to have died as a result of this diet.

In fact, in your state of California, two noted cardiologists have treated three patients for cardiac complications after such a diet. Two of these patients died.

This should give all of us a sense of awareness of the fact that the liquid-protein-starvation approach to weight reduction is just not entirely safe. The two patients who died and the one who survived were all between the ages of 27 and 33. At the start of the program, they were described as "healthy looking women." In three to five months, they lost somewhere between 80 and 90 pounds.

Other cases have been reported across the country that should alert such dieters to the potential hazard of unsupervised self-established eating habits.

The reasons for the changes in the heart's rate and rhythm caused by such a diet may be attributed to the depletion in the body of sodium and calcium. There are, of course, other complex chemical reasons.

There are some sensible rules by which strenuous dieters can accomplish their purpose, maintain their good health and still avoid the calamities of too rigorous a regime.

This is the advice that is given: 1) don't use liquid protein diets as the sole source of nutrients; 2) don't use the diet for children; 3) most important, be sure that anyone on such a diet has medical supervision and regular blood studies.

Physicians have been alerted to the fact that heart complications can occur and that specific medicines can be prescribed if patients show early symptoms of these complications. It should also be noted by you and other dieters that some people who have been on this semi-starvation diet have run into problems when once again they return to a normal diet.

I'm certain that by now you can appreciate why the medical community, happy about loss of weight such as you report, is nevertheless concerned about the possible dangers of any diet that is so stark and rigid, particularly one that seems to be fraught with heart complications.

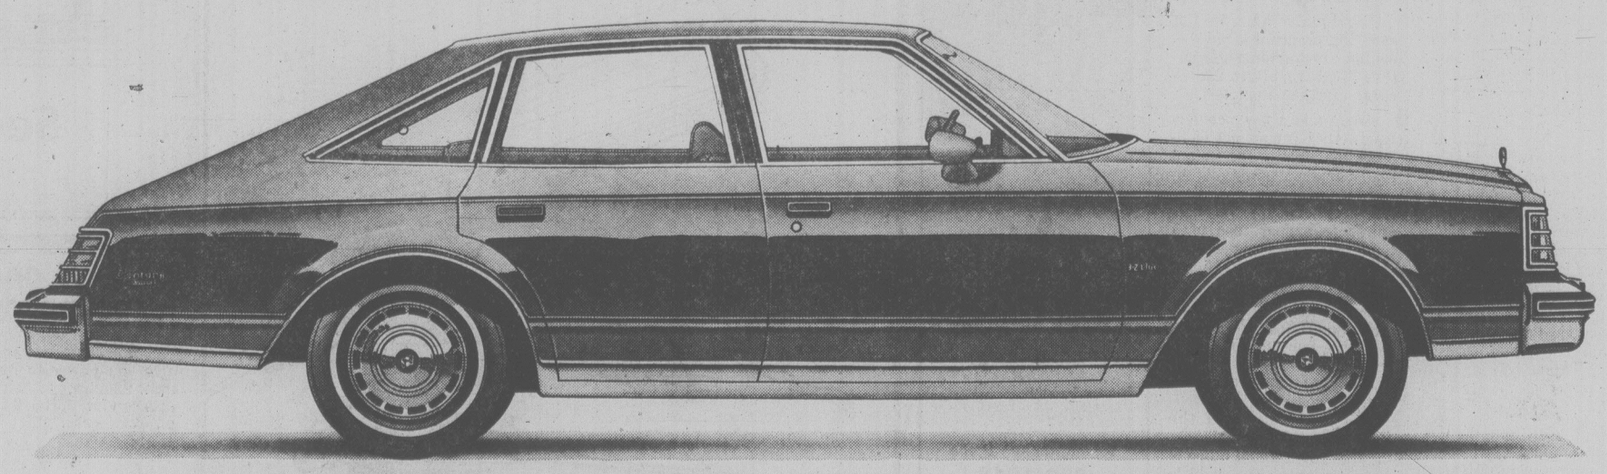
Century.
A Buick like you've never seen before.



How Buick Science works Magic for you.

In redefining the full-size Buick successfully for last year, Buick discovered how science, and a little magic, could help reshape the mid-size Buick for this year.

Again, Buick was after "efficiency", without in any way losing sight of the prestige and luxury that's always been a Buick tradition. And always will be.

The Century Custom Sedan, above, is over a foot shorter and hundreds of pounds lighter than last year's counterpart. It's a leaner, neater Buick with an expensive, European look, a slantback design that is not only highly contemporary but is a logical body style for the future. It's what can happen when designers and engineers merge their ambitions to meet new goals in a changing world.

Look at Century's new mileage numbers. Fuel economy estimates with the standard 3.2 litre V6 and available automatic transmission are 35 km/g in city tests, 51 km/g highway and 41 kilometres per gallon, or 25 miles per gallon in combined city and highway tests*. A bit of Buick wizardry.

While Century is in great shape outside, usable room inside has been maintained. Or even improved, in significant measurements like front and rear head room and leg room over last year's model. Such things as shell front seat construction, a longer "travel" for front seat adjustment, moving the instrument panel forward, and recessing the rear armrests, all contribute to ample passenger room for six people.

Even trunk capacity, aided by the use of a new compact spare tire, has been increased to over 16 cubic feet.

The sheer magic of the resized Century is clear the minute you take the wheel. The new size and weight, the new chassis and suspension, help make Century easier to manoeuver in city traffic, easier to park, and more fun to drive.

There are seven new Coupes and Sedans and two new station wagons. The wagons have a standard 3.8 litre V6, all Century models offer an optional V8, and all have the comfort, quality and richness that's second nature to Buick.

Whether you're buying or leasing, see your Buick dealer now.

*Based on approved Transport Canada test methods. The actual fuel economy you get will vary according to the kind of driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition, and available equipment.

Rhodesia Accord 'A Flop'

Times News Services

UNITED NATIONS — Canada told the UN Security Council on Monday that the so-called internal plan for black majority rule in Rhodesia is inadequate and fails to provide for a genuine transfer of power to the country's six million blacks.

Canadian Ambassador William Barton said it is clear that the agreement signed by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith and three moderate black leaders in Salisbury on March 3 "does not provide for the full transfer of the instruments of authority to the black majority."

Barton picked out the main flaws in the Salisbury pact, which already has brought strong condemnation from African countries and others in the Security Council debate on Rhodesia.

Under the Salisbury agreement, Barton noted, the white minority of 268,000 still will be able to retain control of the judiciary, the military, the police and the civil service for at least 10 years.

There is no provision for a ceasefire under international supervision, Barton said. Nor is there provision for internationally-supervised elections.

"All things considered, therefore, we regard the agreement reached in Salisbury as inadequate."

Meanwhile, in Salisbury, nationalist leaders slated to join the first black-dominated government have rejected a Western proposal for talks with guerrilla leaders opposed to the plan.

A spokesman for Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, one of the three black leaders who signed the majority rule agreement with Smith, said today: "The talks are over."

President Carter, Britain and the United Nations can "organize as many conferences as they like," said spokesman Edward Chitate. "We have resolved our problems."

The other Rhodesian-based nationalists, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and tribal Chief Jeremiah Chirau, issued statements rejecting a proposal by Carter and British Foreign Secretary David Owen.

Britain and the United States, warning that the Salisbury agreement will not stop the war or gain international recognition, want the signatories and the leaders of the guerrilla Patriotic Front movement to join in new talks.

Smith, in a more cautious reaction, has said that he and the three black leaders must decide jointly on Carter's proposal.

Patriotic Front leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo say they will talk only to the Western powers to negotiate on a British-U.S. plan for black-majority rule put forward last fall.

'Paralysed By Flu Shots'

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Two married couples filed lawsuits for $3 million each against the U.S. government Monday, charging that swine flu shots left the husband of one couple and the wife of the other partially paralysed.

Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander of Spencerport and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Chappelle of Canandaigua, all represented by Rochester lawyer Richard Bernstein, took the action here in U.S. district court.

Alexander said he spent eight days in hospital and missed six months of work because of paralysis in the limbs after he received a swine flu inoculation in December, 1976. He said he still has numbness of his feet.

Mrs. Chappelle, the wife of a Canandaigua policeman, said she was partially paralysed after receiving a swine flu shot in October, 1976.

Swine flu inoculations were administered under a government-sponsored program in the fall of 1976 when an epidemic of the disease was feared.

French Leftists Rallying Behind Joint Candidates

PARIS (AP) — The Socialist-Communist alliance launched a runoff campaign today after agreeing to support joint candidates.

It was a last-ditch effort to salvage victory in the final round of voting Sunday for the National Assembly and wrest power from the conservative-centrist majority that has been in office since 1958.

Restoration of leftist unity became necessary after the Socialists and Communists turned in a surprisingly weak performance in the first round Sunday, polling almost nine percentage points less than the 54 per cent predicted.

The agreement by Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand, Communist Georges Marchais and Robert Fabre of the small Left Radicals was reached Monday night. It called for mutual withdrawals to ensure full support for the best-placed leftist candidates in the 423 races still to be decided in the runoff elections.

Candidates needed at least 50 per cent of the vote to be elected in the first round. Candidates who received at least 12.5 per cent of the vote on the first round qualified for the second round where the candidates receiving the most votes will win.

The three leaders urged all local party organizations to meet immediately to ensure "loyal co-operation" in backing the leading leftist in each district. There will be a new poster campaign naming the selected candidate, and all other leftist candidates were told to take part in the chosen man's campaign meetings.

HOSPITAL SETTLES FOR $2M

CHICAGO (UPI) — A hospital has reached a $2 million settlement with a woman who was admitted for a routine gynecological operation but suffered irreversible brain damage during the administration of anesthesia.

The damages were awarded by Billings Hospital to Emma White, 29, in an out-of-court agreement.

School Bus Hijacked

WALLED LAKE, Mich. (AP) — A man commandeered a school bus in a Detroit suburb today and was shot by police a short time later, authorities said. No students were reported injured.

Initial details were sketchy, but police said the bus was carrying students to Walled Lake Central High School. They said the incident occurred in White Lake Township, adjacent to Walled Lake, a suburb about 50 kilometres northwest of downtown Detroit.

Township Police Chief Justin Watt said the man was shot but did not give his condition.

Woman Tries To Throw Purse At the Queen

LONDON (AP) — A middle-aged woman shouting at Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip disrupted a British Commonwealth Day service Monday in Westminster Abbey.

Stewards prevented the woman from throwing a handbag at the royal couple, said reporters present in the church.

The shabbily-dressed woman was arrested. A police spokesman said later she will be dealt with under the Mental Health Act, which means she would be given a psychiatric examination.

The outburst was heard by 2,500 people packed into the abbey for the annual service. The unidentified woman marched up the aisle to within a few metres of the Queen and Philip and shouted: "God didn't want any of his children killed or drowned in his blood."

The royal couple appeared unmoved by the incident and the dean of Westminster, Very Rev. Edward Carpenter, continued the service, the news agency Press Association reported.

Press Association reporters said the woman wore a dark coat and purple felt hat and clutched a scarlet-colored plastic handbag.

An Abbey spokesman said anyone can apply for a ticket to attend the service.

"What happened today is very sad but, as this is a Commonwealth service, we like everyone possible to come and this is just one of those things that happen," he said. "I don't think the outburst spoiled the service."

Poisoned: Pot Smokers

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — An organization representing marijuana users filed a suit Monday alleging the U.S. government abetted the poisoning of marijuana smokers by helping Mexico to spray marijuana fields with a herbicide that causes permanent lung damage.

The suit, filed in U.S. district court here by the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML), asked that the U.S. government be directed to try to have Mexico stop spraying the herbicide.

It was filed the the day after a government announcement that people who smoked marijuana sprayed with the plant poison, paraquat, might be severely injured.

Joseph Califano, health, education and welfare secretary, said smoking Mexican marijuana "could lead to permanent lung damage for regular and heavy users of marijuana, and conceivably for other users as well." He said the average user would not be able to recognize marijuana containing a heavy residue of paraquat.

Keith Strup, NORML national director, said up to 15 million U.S. residents are regular users of marijuana and unwittingly might consume the paraquat-contaminated drug.

U.S. involvement in the spraying program largely is confined to providing helicopters Mexican pilots use to spray marijuana patches.

Stroup told a news conference NORML does not challenge the right of the United States to join another government in a marijuana-eradication drive, but questions its power to support use of a plant poison that might cause severe injury to humans.

"Use of marijuana, even where it's illegal, is considered a minor offence," he said. "Clearly, poisoning marijuana smokers is not a penalty or punishment that should be allowed to continue."

The legal basis of the NORML suit is a claim that the U.S. government failed to comply with the National Environmental Policy Act.

Close Encounter Coming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The earth will have a close encounter with an asteroid Wednesday as one of the rocky bodies passes within 12.8 million kilometres (eight million miles).

The object, estimated to be between .8 kilometre and 1.6 kilometre in diameter, will be the second large asteroid to zip by the earth this month, astronomers say.

A slightly larger chunk of space rock came within 19.2 million kilometres (12 million miles) March 8 as it headed for a swing around the sun.

Dr. Brian Marsden of the Harvard-Smithsonian Centre for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass., said Monday that both objects were discovered in February.

"There was never a question of these two hitting the earth, but there is evidence these types of objects have struck in the past," Marsden said.

The closest known pass of a such an object came in 1937 when the asteroid Hermes missed the Earth by only 800,000 kilometres (one-half million miles).

Marsden said the first of the recently-discovered objects, designated 1978 CA, has been classified as an Apollo asteroid. The 25 known bodies in this class are relatively large objects whose orbits pass through the earth's orbit as they travel around the sun.

A Quick Tidy For Salyut 6

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Soviet cosmonauts are cleaning up the Salyut 6 space station and getting ready for their return to earth.

Yuri Romanenko and Georgy Grechko, who have been in space since Dec. 10, are also getting their capsule ready for the return to earth, Tass reported today.

SAKHAROV CUT OFF

MOSCOW (AP) — Dissident leader Andrei Sakharov said Monday that for the first time Soviet authorities have disconnected his home telephone.

The 1975 Nobel Peace Prize laureate had used his telephone extensively in helping to coordinate dissident activities in the Soviet Union.

Many other dissidents previously have had their phone service abruptly cut off.

The move came one day after Sakharov and his wife joined more than 20 Soviet Jews in a demonstration in downtown Moscow to protest against Kremlin support for the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The protest was prompted by Saturday's Arab terrorist attack againt two tourist buses in Israel.

Sakharov said a woman telephoned his Moscow apartment Monday afternoon and told his wife that the phone was being disconnected because the couple owed money for calls to other cities in the Soviet Union and abroad.

Sakharov and his wife immediately went to the international telephone exchange in Moscow. An official checked their documents and told them there appeared to be no reason for their telephone to be cut off, Sakharov said.

Quick Thinking Averts a Tragedy

DENVER (AP) — The quick thinking of three crew members who leaped from the cockpit of a United Airlines jet to the runway four metres below was credited with ending a hijacking by a man who said he had terminal cancer and wanted to fly to Memphis, Tenn., or Cuba.

"We did not know that the crew was going to escape," said Ted Rosack, special agent in charge of the Denver FBI office. "They did it on their own. Their actions ended what could have been a tragedy. I think it's extremely commendable. We were prepared to refuel the plane and let it continue on."

Clay Thomas, 27, of Mountain View, Calif., surrendered shortly after the crew jumped from the aircraft, leaving him alone in the plane with a red-and-white flight bag which he said contained a bomb.

The bag contained some books and papers and a lollipop. "There was no bomb," said Rosack.

The crew escaped about an hour after the plane, flying from San Francisco, landed here at Stapleton International Airport. Thomas had gone back to the passenger compartment, apparently to see whether his demand that the plane be refuelled was being met.

As agents converged on the Boeing 727 and lowered its rear stairway, Rosack used a car loudspeaker to call for Thomas to surrender.

"I surrender," he was quoted as saying by Bob Stapp, an airport spokesman.

Thomas was arraigned Monday night before U.S. Magistrate Royce Sickler for aircraft piracy, which carries a maximum 20-year prison term, and held in lieu of $250,000 bail.

When told of the amount of his bail, Thomas cried: "You'd think I was the killing, criminal type."

Thomas told Sickler he was an unemployed, disabled army veteran and did not have enough money to hire a lawyer.

Thomas described himself to Sickler as "a psychiatric case" and asked to see a psychiatrist. Sickler told him to take that up with his court-appointed lawyer.

No mention of Thomas's alleged cancer was made during arraignment. When he commandeered the flight over San Francisco Bay the hijacker told the crew he suffered from terminal cancer and needed treatment.

He initially demanded to be flown to Memphis then changed his destination to Cuba.

The Seattle-bound jet was diverted to Oakland, Calif., where all 68 passengers and the four flight attendants were allowed to leave. A refuelling stop was planned at Denver because the plane did not have enough to reach Memphis.

TWO KILLED CANADIANS IDENTIFIED

MUNSTER (AP) — The Canadian army today identified two soldiers who were killed Monday when an artillery shell exploded prematurely during live-fire training in north Germany.

Dead are Pte. W. P. Dore, 22, of Toronto and Pte. G. M.W. House, 19, of Port Saunders, Nfld.

Another five soldiers were slightly injured in the blast. They were taken to a British military hospital in nearby Hannover.

The Old Guard Returns

ROME (Reuter) — The old-guard Christian Democrats are returning to their government posts in Italy's 40th post-Fascist government with Communist support for the first time in three decades.

The compromise left unsolved the country's basic problems of political violence, kidnappings, 15-per-cent inflation, 1.6-million unemployment and industrial depression.

The new all-Christian Democratic cabinet sworn in Monday night under veteran Premier Giulio Andreotti will have to show dramatic improvement on these fronts to avoid falling by early next year, some commentators said.

The cabinet, in which all but two ministers served under the previous Andreotti administration, will be relying on direct Communist support in parliament for the first time since 1947.

Andreotti's last government, which survived for 17 months on Communist abstention, collapsed on Jan. 16 after the Communists sought cabinet seats.

To end the crisis, Andreotti brought the Communists, along with Socialists, Social Democrats, and Republicans into a five-party parliamentary majority—one of the loosest and biggest in Italian history.

That means the Communists, who received only four per cent less votes than the Christian Democrats in the general election of June 1976, have a role in a national government.

This would be a further step towards Communist leader Enrico Berlinguer's call for an "historic compromise" of power sharing between Communists and non-Communists.

Executions Scheduled

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah state prison, where killer Gary Gilmore was executed by a firing squad 14 months ago, is preparing for the simultaneous firing-squad executions next week of two convicted killers.

Lawyers for both men say they will file appeals and are confident the executions won't be carried out as scheduled at sunrise Wednesday, March 22.

If the executions are carried out, they will be the first in the United States since Gilmore died Jan. 17, 1977.

Celery's Secret: Water

Most gardeners would like to grow a good crop of celery and can do so once the culture of these plants is mastered. This is when we realize the value of a good seed catalog that gives details of culture for the seed listed, details not found on seed packets nor in the average book on gardening.

Germination of celery seed is a problem with most gardeners. It is slow to germinate compared with other popular vegetables, and the germinating temperature has a direct bearing on the habit of plants.

An average of 21 days (3 weeks) is needed for germination during which time the soil mixture in which the seeds are sown must be constantly damp but never wet. This condition is helped by covering the container with a sheet of glass. Plastic is not suitable because it allows heat to escape. Any drying of the soil will delay germination.

Temperature of the soil must be maintained at 18 degs. C. throughout the germinating period. A drop overnight to 13 degs. will increase the number of plants that bolt to seed.

Seed should be sown indoors 10 to 12 weeks before the estimated date for weather conditions to be suitable for transplanting to the open garden, which will be from June 1 to 15 locally.

Should cold nights continue after transplanting a large percentage of the plants will produce seed stems instead of good leaf stalks. Purchased plants that have been allowed to dry out will react in the same way.

Celery plants are the gluttons of the vegetable garden, heavy feeders and drinkers, therefore must be carefully placed in relation to adjacent crops.

Onions cannot be planted nearby because the soil water from the celery rows reaching the onion roots in July will delay ripening. Other vegetables to which fertilizer is detrimental have to be kept at a safe distance.

To retain the required amount of moisture at the roots makes large amounts of compost or old manure necessary, well and evenly mixed with the soil to a depth of 12 inches.

Frequent watering is necessary, not over the plants, but directly to the soil over the root area. During the first few weeks after transplanting in June it is important to keep the top four inches of soil sufficiently damp. As the roots penetrate more deeply, longer watering is needed, probably once a week according to weather. Surface sprinkling every day is a useless waste of time and water.

The crop requires 98 to 105 days to mature, according to variety, and light feeding every two weeks. Liquid whale or seaweed alginates may be poured over the foliage. Two measuring teaspoons of 6-8-6 in one gallon of water, applied to soil and not on foliage, is the recommended strength of dry fertilizer.

If double or triple strength fertilizers are used the amount must be reduced accordingly. On feeding day, half the normal watering is done, then the fertilizer solution applied to the soil, and the rest of the watering time used to carry the fertilizer to the root area.

The tendency to pithy stalks, called "punking-out", has been greatly lessened in the Improved Utah 52-70 selections, a tendency that is aggravated by improper feeding and water.

Utah and Salt Lake strains are full flavored and produce smaller plants for the home garden. All Golden Celery strains have to be blanched before using; the Utah and Salt Lake need no blanching.

Arrest Looms For Suspect

OTTAWA (CP) — A youth suspected of slaying a Vancouver man two months ago is in Mexico City and his arrest is expected momentarily, a Mexican Embassy spokesman said Monday.
The spokesman said the information was received earlier Monday by Mexican Ambassador Agustin Barrios Gomez who had telephoned authorities in the state of Guerrero.

Alan Francis Judge, 51, of Vancouver was found stabbed and beaten to death Jan. 16, one of four Canadians to die violently recently in Mexico.

Meanwhile, Ambassador Gomez protested a Vancouver news report quoting Canadian diplomats in Mexico as saying that Mexican police attempted to get Canadian government funds to repair their car before pursuing suspected slayers of Judge.

The Vancouver dispatch, distributed nationally by The Canadian Press, quoted an embassy spokesman as saying that the Canadian consul in Acapulco, scene of the Judge slaying, had to lay down the law to Mexican police before the search was continued for the suspects.
Said Ambassador Gomez here Monday: "Thanks to the fine personal relationship existing between (Canadian) Ambassador James Langley and myself, I took the liberty of calling him immediately requesting information on the very strong allegation published."
Gomez said he had Langley's word that neither of the two people authorized to speak for the embassy had commented to reporters about the Judge death.

Camera Catches Quebec UFO?

MONTREAL (CP) — Two men say they have photographed an unidentified flying object hovering over a lake in the hills of La Verendrye Park, about 320 kilometres northwest of Montreal.

Jacques Lavoie, 30, and Richad Huot, 36, of nearby Ile Perrot, say they were camping near Lake Baskatong Saturday night when a brightly glowing object hurtled out of the sky and sent them fleeing through the snow in terror.

When it seemed to disappear the two came back and found it near the lake, "hovering silently over the water."

They say they photographed the object with a 35-millimetre camera. The coarse-grain prints show a blurred, oval-shaped white object in a sea of black. A faint outline of what could be trees and the surface of the lake is visible on some negatives.

Lavoie and Huot said the object appeared for about 30 seconds.

Letter Says U.S. Willing to Accept 56-Inch Gas Pipe

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The United States is willing to accept a Canadian government decision on construction of the Alaska Highway natural gas pipeline which could cost consumers in both countries as much as $1 billion, a confidential letter written by a top federal energy official says.

The letter from Don Smith, chairman of the U.S. Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), to J. G. Stabback, chairman of Canada's National Energy Board (NEB), was disclosed in the current issue of the All-Alaska Weekly, a Fairbanks-based newspaper.

In a dispatch from its capitol correspondent, the newspaper quoted Smith as saying a decision by the NEB in favor of a larger diameter, lower pressure pipe for sections of the line through Canada than that authorized by FERC for Alaska "will adversely affect the price of gas to the United States consumer as well as the Canadian consumer."

Smith wrote to Stabback last month, two day before the NEB opted for a 56-inch diameter pipe with a pressure of 1,080 pounds per square inch (PSI).

FERC had been pressing for a uniform 48-inch pipe with a pressure of 1,680 PSI for the line to carry Prudhoe Bay gas to the lower 48 states.

But Smith said the U.S. government was "prepared to accept" the Canadian alternative "if accompanied by a firm indication of intent" to build a separate pipeline to add Canada's McKenzie Delta gas to the line near Dawson, Yukon by 1990.

The NEB said it had settled on a large diameter, low-pressure pipe on the Canadian section of the line between Whitehorse, Yukon and Caroline Junction, Alta. because of safety and reliability factors.

However, Smith said in his memo that the operating fuel economy of a 48-inch, 1,680 PSI line through Canada could result in an additional 350 trillion BTU's of energy.

BIG REWARD IN ROBBERY

MONTREAL (CP) — Rewards totalling $125,000 have been offered for information leading to the recovery of more than $1 million that was stolen from a Wells Fargo Armoured Express Ltd. office in nearby Longueuil Feb. 17.

Ontario Flood Threat

Canadian Press

An intense, late-winter storm centred south of the Great Lakes brought heavy rain, high winds and the threat of flooding to some southern Ontario areas today.

However, conservation authorities were not anticipating severe flooding from an expected rainfall of up to 2.5 centimetres.

Colder air expected overnight Tuesday night was expected to reduce temperatures below the freezing mark and change the rain to snowflurries. More wet snow is anticipated Wednesday.

Environment Canada said the storm area was moving rapidly across the province bringing about a decrease in rain intensity over the southwest.

Rain was expected in southeastern Ontario until about mid-afternoon.

Legal Advice Sought On U.S. Consultant

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver school board Monday decided to seek legal advice on whether a federal immigration department ruling that it cannot hire a United States consultant to evaluate its language development program is binding.

A letter to the board from Richard Cruchley, of the executive and professional division of Canada Manpower, says the department expects the board to draft a paper outlining its need for an evaluator, which it must send to the education faculties of Canadian universities.

It also states that, if the board subsequently wishes to appeal the department's decision not to allow the hiring of San Francisco educator Nicholas Rayder, it must supply a complete list of all Canadian candidates for the job, their replies, and a detailed report on why they were not chosen.

"Board members responded in some amazement at the tone of the letter," said board spokesman Chuck Gosbee. "They recommended to the board's officials that a legal opinion be sought to see if it (the letter) can be enforced."

He said the trustees will probably not act on the letter until after the legal opinion is brought to the board at its meeting March 20.

The board decided a week ago to hire Rayder, despite an admission from school superintendent Dante Lupini that there was not a thorough search for a Canadian evaluator for Project BUILD (Bringing Unity into Language Development).

Immigration authorities ruled on Friday that the board cannot hire Rayder on the grounds that a proper search for a Canadian consultant did not take place.

Newborn seal pup is hunters' prey

Sealing Halted, Pups Awaited

ST. ANTHONY, Nfld. (CP) — The protesters, the protested, the hunters and hunted all gained an indefinite reprieve today in the Newfoundland seal hunt.

The protesters cancelled plans to put more than a dozen of their number on the ice to observe the hunt while a delayed whelp halted the killing by sealers from four Canadian ships.

It was unclear early today how long the hunt would be halted to permit more pups to be born on the ice front off southern Labrador and also whether the temporary halt was a decision by the skippers of the sealing vessels or the federal fisheries department.

The Arctic Explorer had 1,502 pelts aboard, the Lady Johnson II 1,450, the Carino 1,260 and the Arctic Endeavor 1,200. These four ships moved Monday into a new patch of seals near South Wolf Island in the Cartwright area of the Labrador coast.

Two other Canadian ships—the Gulf Star and the Prince Andrew—were steaming along the coast further south with no seals aboard. Four Norwegian ships also had not reported any seals aboard in their location six miles north of South Wolf Island.

The Canadian share of the quota is 62,000 Harp seal pelts. The Norwegians are allowed 35,000.

Greenpeace spokesman Bob Hunter said a plan to put about 15 Greenpeace members on the ice 360 kilometres north of here was being delayed for "strategic reasons."

But minutes earlier, Charles Friend, public relations officer for federal fisheries minister Romeo LeBlanc, said that a Gander, Nfld., company which chartered two helicopters to Greenpeace had told their pilots not to fly to the area.

Chutist Survives

VENDBORG, Denmark (AP) — An amateur parachutist survived a fall of more than 2,000 feet here after his chute failed to open until he was about 30 feet from the ground. Frank Jensen, 22, suffered broken legs and possible internal injuries, but is out of danger.

Sentence Suspended In $12,121 Bank Theft

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former employee of the Bank of Nova Scotia Monday was given a suspended sentence and put on probation for three years for theft of $12,121 in cash receipts.

Vivian Ann Day, 19, of Surrey, was sentenced by provincial court Judge K. A. Smith for stealing the receipts between Nov. 1 and Jan. 20 during counts of evening deposits. Day put six deposit bags in a waste paper basket and returned to pick them up after all bank employees had left, court was told.

Judge Smith said, in sentencing the woman, that he considered Day had acted on impulse and did not spend the money. Police investigation led to the recovery of half the money from Day's Surrey bank account and the other half from her apartment.

'FLY-INFESTED MEXICAN HELL'

OTTAWA (CP) — "One night we had steak so tough, I couldn't even cut it — the next day at breakfast it turned up in the stew.

"And there were flies by the zillions, with no attempts to keep them away from the food.

That was how Josephone Cardinal described her recent vacation via Sunflight Holidays in what she called a fly-infested Mexican Hell.

"I feel as though I haven't had any vacation at all . . . as though I've just thrown a thousand bucks out the window."

She and 12 others on her Sunflight charter Feb. 9 had paid $872 in advance for a two-week stay in the Play Azul hotel on the island of Cozumel.

When they arrived at the Island airport they were told their reservations no longer existed. They were sent to another hotel which she described as incredible.

She had a knee-level bathroom sink, a toilet that worked occasionally and an air conditioner that blew smoke rather than cool air.

But at least Josephone Cardinal and some of the other disgruntled vacationers will get compensation from Sunflight Holidays. The company's regional manager here, Ash Muckherjee, said an investigation will be made and "there definitely will be a settlement."

A travel industry spokesman said, however, there is little that can be done to prevent such inconveniences in the future.

CTC DENIES ABC STALL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Transport Commission Monday denied published reports that it is deliberately holding up the approval of domestic advanced booking charter (ABC) flights.

Official Therese Giroux said to date the commission has approved 127 of 870 applications it has received from three airlines to start running ABC flights this summer.

Prison Shocks Blais

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais said Monday it is terrible that prisoners in Millhaven institution's special-handling unit are forced to stay in their cells for 23½ hours every other day.

During a tour of Millhaven, a maximum-security institution, Blais said that the special-handling unit was created to deal with an immediate problem and that the unit would be changed in the future.

"I'm concerned about its (the unit's) growing importance in the penal system," he said.

Imprisonment, no matter how humane, creates a problem, said Blais, adding that 25-year sentences with no hope of parole have a negative impact on convicts.

The solicitor-general also said that the federal government's policy of not making deals with hostage-takers still is enforced.

He did not refer directly to the current hostage-taking incident involving federal prisoners in St. Jerome, Que.

But he said penitentiary officials communicate with hostage-takers, even though negotiations or bargaining is out of the question.

Blais also said capital punishment will not be re-introduced in Canada. He said statistics show no increase in murders since the removal of capital punishment and that murder and violent crime have stabilized.

RCMP Denies Force

OTTAWA (CP) — A man picked off the street at 2 p.m. by the RCMP Security Service and taken to an isolated motel north of Montreal was talking freely after 13 hours of questioning, RCMP Insp. Laurent Hugo told a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing Monday.

Hugo, 40, led by commission counsel Ross Goodwin, denied that force was used in an attempt to get the unidentified man to become an informant on terrorist associates.

But he said he returned to the motel room at 2: 30 a.m. to find the man standing a foot away from a blank wall and facing it.

"I said 'What are you doing there? You're not a child. Sit down,'" Hugo testified.

The man hadn't eaten although Hugo said he had been offered food during questioning that began shortly after he was picked up the afternoon before.

The case was one of four referred to the commission in January by Francis Fox, then solicitor-general. Fox said the law may have been broken by the RCMP in these cases. Goodwin has said three more such cases have come to the attention of the royal commission.

Goodwin at one point Monday let slip the last name of one of the seven. Mr. Justice David C. McDonald, royal commission chairman, later asked reporters not to use the name because it might endanger the life of the person.

He was a sergeant responsible for "recruitment of human sources" or informers in Montreal from September, 1971, to April, 1972. He worked in the anti-terrorist "G-4" section in Montreal in that period.

Hugo joined the RCMP in 1955, left briefly to sell insurance, then returned and was posted to the security service in the early 1960s.

He said that when he asked Staff Sgt. Donald McCleery, later dismissed from the force for unspecified reasons, what his duties in G. Section would be, McCleery wrote on a piece of paper: "You will develop sources on request."

The first recruiting attempt apparently began Oct. 4, 1971 — the eve of the first anniversary of the terrorist "October crisis" in Montreal — with a man Hugo said was getting unemployment insurance cheques under an assumed name.

Three unmarked RCMP cars boxed the man's car against a wall on Park Avenue in downtown Montreal after Hugo signalled him to stop. Hugo said he had neither a search nor arrest warrant but he had "reasonable cause to believe (the man) was involved in a terrorist cell." Replying to Goodwin's questions, Hugo said he also had reason to believe the man was about to break a law — collecting unemployment insurance under an assumed name.

Hugo said that when he asked for identification, the man without protest showed him false identity cards. Hugo said he used "a firm tone" in asking the man to get into the RCMP car with him.

Hugo said that although it was a request, the man had no choice. Another Mountie drove the man's car elsewhere as they left on a drive that lasted 90 minutes and took them eventually to a "fairly isolated" motel on a highway on Ile-Jesus north of Montreal Island. Hugo and the man sat in the doorless back seat with a Cpl. Dubuc driving. The man did't talk much and wasn't told where he was being taken, Hugo said.

Marchand 'Given $25,000'

TORONTO — A $25,000 payment was made in 1972 to the re-election campaign of Jean Marchand, then federal transport minister, after the federal government awarded a $2.7-million contract for dredging near Trois-Rivieres, Que., a former dredging company president testified Monday.

Prosecution witness Horace Grant Rindress, former president of J. P. Porter Co. Ltd., Montreal, said he issued the cheque on the instructions of Porter director Bruno Desjardins.

Rindress was testifying under the protection of the Canada Evidence Act which prevents testimony he gives being used against him in any future court proceedings.

Eleven executives and nine companies are charged with defrauding the federal and Ontario governments and the Hamilton and Toronto harbor commissioners of about $4.2 million.

Jobless Figure Tops a Million For First Time

OTTAWA (CP) — Government figures showing that unemployment in February smashed the one-million barrier for the first time brought renewed opposition demands today for swift action to create jobs.

Statistics Canada, in its regular monthly report on the labor force, said there were 1,007,000 actual unemployed last month, up from 991,000 in January and 932,000 in February last year.

But the jobless rate, adjusted to take seasonal changes in the work force into account, stood at 8.3 per cent. That was the same as January but up from eight per cent in February, 1977.

British Columbia's rate fell to 8.4 per cent from 8.7 per cent.

Conservative Progressive finance critic Sinclair Stevens called for a new budget, saying the country cannot tolerate one million out of work. His call was echoed by James McGrath (PC—St. John's East), who said the jobless have a better chance of winning a lottery prize than finding work.

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, termed the official one-million mark a "symbolic turning-point." But he held out no hope the government will act now.

Canadian Labor Congress president Joe Morris called for a budget which aims at creating jobs in the public sector.

Employment Minister Bud Cullen said the breaking of the one-million barrier was not unanticipated.

Government incentives which went into effect Jan. 1 and which were aimed at spurring economic recovery, had not yet had an impact, he said.

The unemployment rate went up in four provinces last month and declined in six.

Despite a decrease in its seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate to 10.9 per cent from 11.4 per cent in January, Quebec remained the province with the largest total of unemployed. There were 342,000 unemployed compared with 339,000 in January.

Newfoundland kept its status as the province with the highest jobless rate at 15.8 per cent. This was a decrease from 16 per cent in January.

There was a substantial decline of 2.5 per cent in the jobless rate for Prince Edward Island. The February rate was 8.2 per cent.

In Nova Scotia, the jobless rate fell to 10.3 per cent from 10.7 per cent in January but in New Brunswick, unemployment rose to 13.4 per cent last month from 12.7 per cent in January.

Ontario's unemployment rate rose by one-tenth of one per cent to seven per cent and the actual number of jobless increased to 326,000 from 316,000 in January.

Unemployment rose in Manitoba to 6.5 per cent from 6.2 per cent but dropped in Saskatchewan to 5.1 per cent from 5.4 per cent.

Alberta, despite an increase in its unemployment rate to 5.1 per cent from 4.6 per cent, remained the province with the lowest jobless rate.

Although opposition spokesmen have been saying for months that there are at least one million unemployed, it is the first time official Statistics Canada estimates have gone over that barrier. Critics have said the federal agency's labor force survey leaves out many unemployed.

Between February, 1977, and February, 1978, today's figures show there were 362,000 new entrants into the labor force but only 267,000 new jobs created, leaving a net growth in unemployment of 95,000.

The February figures show that for the second month in succession unemployment has moderated. There was a steady rise in the jobless rate between May and December last year to a peak of 8.5 per cent.

In January, the jobless rate fell to 8.3 per cent, the first decline in months.

In the U.S., the February unemployment rate was 6.1 per cent last month, the lowest figure since October, 1974.

JAIL RIOT KILLS 44

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Several hundred prisoners clashed with police at Argentina's largest prison today and authorities said 44 persons were killed and scores more injured in the worst prison riots on record.

The federal penitentiary service said all the dead were nonpolitical prisoners killed by smoke inhalation or burns after rioters set fire to bedding, turning their cellblock into an inferno.

Feds Eye Cowichan Showdown

The federal government's newly beefed-up Fisheries Act could get its first major test on the West Coast on the Cowichan estuary.

In a telegram to the provincial government, federal Fisheries Minister Romeo Leblanc states that he prefers co-operation to confrontation, but if industry fails to work with the government in finding environmental solutions then Bill C-38 will be applied to any estuary developments that threaten fish habitat.

Last year the federal government pushed through legislative amendments that greatly expanded the definition of fish and gave fisheries officials more power to protect fish habitats. The forest industry was largely opposed to the changes as too severe and restrictive.

One of the controversial amendments states: "No person shall carry on any work or undertaking that results in the harmful alteration, disruption or destruction of fish habitat."

The act gives the government the power to halt any project it considers damaging to the fishery and to order any protective amendments it feels necessary.

In his telegram, Leblanc states that "approval of any plans submitted by the wood processing and handling industry will be subject to the implementation of measures designed to mitigate negative impacts to the fisheries resources and biological productivity of B.C. estuaries, and the destructive impacts of such activities will be strongly opposed within the extent of my legislative authority."

Leblanc says that the protection of fish habitat is vital.

"Recent studies concerning the importance of B.C. estuaries for the rearing of fish, particularly juvenile Pacific salmon, and the destructive impact of log storage on fish habitat and food organisms conducted in the American Northwest, all point to the need for a strengthened policy . . ."

He said that "my position

FISH WERE FREE for the asking in Vancouver Monday night after truck spilled nearly 6.6 tons at a downtown intersection. People brought boxes, bags and buckets to carry away as much as they could handle. When the crowd thinned, a front-end loader was brought in to clean up the rest of the mess.

Cabinet Review Of Bus Strike

The provincial cabinet plans to review the effect of the B.C. Hydro bus strike Thursday.

In the meantime, commuters here in Victoria and Vancouver are just going to have to do without bus service.

Labor Minister Allan Williams says he will try and determine what effect the strike by 3,500 transit workers is having on B.C. Hydro's operations and make a recommendation to Thursday's regular cabinet meeting as to whether the government will invoke sections of the Essential Services Disputes Act.

The act allows the government to order the Labor Relations Board to designate certain services as essential and order striking employees back to work. The cabinet can also impose a 90-day cooling-off period.

Meanwhile, aside from bus users who have had to resort to using cars, hitch-hiking or walking, about 3,500 Hydro employees in three other unions not on strike are feel-

Daring Dutch Marines' Assault Frees 70 Without Loss of Life

ASSEN, Netherlands (UPI) — Dutch Marines today attacked a government building and freed about 70 hostages held by Moluccan extremists without loss of life, a government spokesman said.

The marines launched their assault shortly after the passing of an 8 a.m. EST deadline set by a Moluccan "suicide commando squad" that threatened to kill hostages unless authorities met their demands for an escape plane for themselves and 21 South Moluccan colleagues jailed for previous attacks.

A spokesman said the troops acted because authorities were faced with "clear evidence" a bloodbath was about to begin.

A government spokesman said no lives were lost in the lightning action. He said three Moluccan terrorists were arrested.

One person was seriously injured and three slightly injured, the spokesman added.

The spokesman said an earlier report that one person was killed during the attack was erroneous. But he confirmed the death of a woman who had been tossed out of a window the previous day and left without help throughout the night. The gunmen refused to allow anyone to come to her aid.

The marines captured three Moluccans "and we think we've got them all," the spokesman added.

Authorities ordered the assault "because we had clear evidence the Moluccans intended to carry out their threat" to murder hostages, Justice Ministry spokesman Willem Van Leeuwen said.

The terrorists said they would start killing hostages at 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EST) unless their demand for a getaway plane for themselves and 21 imprisoned comrades was met by that time. The Moluccans also demanded a $13 million ransom.

It was the third such siege

Police Raiders Seek M-B Pay-Off Evidence

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the Vancouver RCMP commercial crime sections have raided four banks, two homes, a law office and a chartered accountants firm seeking possible evidence of secret commissions paid to employees at the MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. wood preserving division in nearby New Westminster, Inspector Keith Dane, said Monday.

Dane, who headed the nine-month long investigation, said financial and corporate records were seized March 8 by about a dozen members of the commercial crime section armed with search warrants.

It was the second time in six months RCMP have been asked by MacMillan Bloedel to investigate the possibility of secret commissions paid to employees in company divisions.

Dane said all the places raided by police March 8 are located in Vancouver but he would not elaborate.

Gerry Haslam, public relations director for MacMillan Bloedel, confirmed Monday that the investigation was initiated by the company about nine months ago.

Dane said the company voiced concerns "about secret commissions being accepted by employees of theirs" at the wood preserving division.

No charges have been laid at this time, said Dane, adding that the investigation will continue. He said police will be analysing the material they seized.

Last October MacMillan Bloedel said that it had asked RCMP to investigate certain rumors concerning MB's log trading division.

$12,000 PAY? YOU'RE POOR

OTTAWA (CP) — A family of four with an income of less than $12,000 a year is considered today to be living in poverty, according to an estimate based on figures from Senator David Croll who led a Senate committee which released a landmark Report on Poverty in 1970.

That report said that in 1970 the income considered essential for a decent standard of living in Canada was $5,000 for a family of four.

The senator said Monday Statistics Canada showed the poverty line figure grew to $10,860 in 1976, the last figures available.

Senator Croll did not attempt to bring the figures up to date. But if an inflation rate of eight per cent is applied to the 1976 figures, the present poverty line would be in excess of $12,000 a year.

Senator Croll released these 1976 poverty lines—already more than a year out of date:

One person: $4,460, from $2,140 in the original report; family of two: $7,760 from $3,570; Three: $9,310 from $4,290; Four: $10,860 from $5,000; Five: $12,140 from $5,710; Six: $13,960 from $6,430; Seven: $15,510 from $7,140.

The Senate committee set its poverty line at 50 per cent of the average Canadian family income. The level is adjusted periodically to reflect changes in the cost of living.

There is considerable divergence between the Senate's poverty line and Statistics Canada's "low-income lines" for 1976.

Statistics Canada says a family of four should be able to live on $6,584 to $9,054, depending on its place of residence. Even the most generous poverty line set by Statistics Canada still is almost $2,000 behind the Senate minimum.

A spokesman in Senator Croll's office explained: "We think our levels are a touch more realistic than Statistics Canada's."

Statistics Canada describes a family as below the low-income line if it spends more than 61 per cent of its total income on food, clothing and shelter.

The poverty lines are lowest in rural areas and highest in cities of 500,000 or more.

Shift Plan Infuriating Police

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Victoria city's police union, which says it is frustrated and dissatisfied with the way the force is being run, is now up in arms over a new shift proposal.

Police union president Sgt. Brian Bailey says the proposal submitted last week by the police board is an insult.

He said the union has called a special meeting tonight to discuss the arrangement that would have officers working 12-hour rather than eight-hour shifts.

Bailey said he anticipates strong criticism of the board and department officials who appear oblivious to what many officers feel is a drastic decline in morale on the force.

"I expect some extremely serious propositions may be suggested (by members of the union) on what action we should take," Bailey said.

Although the union has been fighting for a 12-hour shift system since last November there are a number of problems with the board's proposal, Bailey said. He declined to elaborate.

Twelve-hour shifts are now being worked by virtually all police departments in the Greater Victoria area.

Individual officers, who asked not to be identified, have pointed to a larger and much more serious problem on the force which could surface at tonight's meeting.

Said one officer: "Our biggest beef really is management style and the fact the police department hasn't any long-term objectives. None of us know where we're going."

Another policeman said officers' lives are often placed in serious jeopardy because of faulty or antiquated equipment.

The communications system is atrocious, he said. Walkie talkies break down and seldom work outside of a few-block radius of the station on Fisgard and radio equipment in the patrol cars is also inadequate.

NO BONUSES FOR STAFF IDEAS

Young Strikes Out Twice

Proposed bonuses to school district employees for constructive criticism and a native Indian staff hiring policy were rejected by the Greater Victoria school board Monday night.

Both proposals were made by Trustee John Young.

A reward system similar to that operating in many businesses should be set up for ideas and suggestions offered by school district employees, Young said, claiming some emoloyees fear speaking out because they believe they may be victimized for criticizing board policy.

Young, arguing for the hiring of more Indians, said he is backed by the provincial human rights commission and the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs.

He asked trustees to change existing standards to recognize Indians as cultural teachers and bring them into the school system.

Although there are an estimated 500 Indian students in Victoria schools, there is only one Indian staff member employed in the district.

"The education of our Indian children — both in B.C. and Canada — is a national disgrace," he said.

But several trustees saidYoung's proposed hiring policy would create a double standard or reverse discrimination.

"You're asking the board to specify one cultural group over qualified applicants," Trustee Mark Fisher said.

The Clothes Spin Tale Of Pioneers

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

A lot can be learned about the health, physique and lifestyle of people who lived in British Columbia 100 years ago from the clothing they wore, says Mary McMinn, curator of costumes and textiles for the Provincial Museum history division.

On the whole the clothes they wore indicate they were not as physically fit as their modern-day counterparts, and they were shorter, mainly due to malnutrition, she said.

The textile expert showed some christening robes worn by infants before 1900.

"Most babies today would not fit into these," she said. "On an average, they were then smaller. Their heads were smaller."

Young children then were not as well fed, she explained. Mothers did not get as attached to them. They kept them at a distance because death of infants was not uncommon.

Some men's jackets reveal they were barrel-chested and had small cylindrical arms, also indicating malnutrition at an early age, she added.

McMinn has plenty of material to back up her beliefs.

She looks after the third largest collection of antique costumes in Canada. It includes 20,000 pieces of clothing, ranging from baby clothes to army uniforms, as well as such accessories as fans and purses.

There are handsome late Victoria and Edwardian ball gowns and garden party frocks, wedding gowns, men's suits, hats of all description and children's clothes.

The collection respresents clothes worn by middle income and affluent residents of B.C. from 1850 to 1960.

McMinn is assembling a collection of garments which will go on exhibition at the museum on April 15.

The display will include 11 adult pieces of clothing, eight children's, four christening robes, plus a wide assortment of accessories.

The curator, who graduated from the University of Victoria with a bachelor of fine arts degree in costumes, history and design, has been working for five years collecting, cataloguing and tracing the history of the people who wore the clothes during the last half of the 19th century.

The history of one lavish wedding gown bought in California was traced to a woman who went with her husband to the gold mining town of Barkerville. But she is a bit of a mystery. Where she ended up, nobody knows.

"Most garments have been donated," said McMinn. "People sometimes keep clothes of members of their families for sentimental reasons and pass them on. Then for one reason or another families can't look after them. So they turn them in to this department for safekeeping."

"All clothes are fumigated before they are stored in cupboards or boxes."

McMinn fingered some of the garments, noting the fine and exquisitely woven cloth.

"They don't make cloth like this today," she said. "Suits would take too long to wear out. The material is so good that you can cut it with scissors and it won't ravel. You don't have to stitch it."

She said outer garments in the 19th century were never washed because French dry cleaning was expensive.

"So they took great care of their costumes," she said. "To protect them they wore layers and layers of inner garments. They washed these."

She said cotton and silk garments were also finely woven.

"Many factors bring about changes in fashion," she said. "It usually starts in Western Europe, affecting the west coast last."

She said Queen Victoria, up to the time of the death of her husband Prince Albert, had a profound effect on fashion. Later it was Queen Alexandra, wife of Edward the VII, who influenced fashion.

Fraud: 3 Years In Jail

A 33-year-old former Victoria civil servant, who submitted invoices for horse feed for horses which didn't exist and added names to time slips in a work-incentive program, was sentenced in county court today to three years in the B.C. Penitentiary for fraud and theft.

John Peter Alexander Fraser, who studied business management for two years at Ryerson Polytechnic in Toronto, has a criminal record including fraud, false pretences, possession of stolen credit cards and forgery.

He was convicted by Judge Thomas Fisher Monday after a five-day trial which began in February.

The fraud involved $3,850 between May 1, 1975, and March 31, 1976, arising from a work activity project he supervised for the B. C. labor department employment programs branch. The theft involved $369.08.

Judge Fisher said civil servants hold a position of trust which Fraser had violated, bringing the work program into disrepute.

"The government embarks on programs, not all of which or with which the public finds favor, but they are trying to assist people find themselves in society and it is that breach (of trust) that makes your conduct here contemptible," he said.

Marine Rescue Unit Proposed For Saanich

Saanich fire department — which will lose most of its responsibility for ambulance service to a provincial agency April 1 — will be equipped to operate its own marine rescue service and water safety program if Saanich council accepts a recommendation framed by its fire and emergency committee Monday night.

The committee recommended that $11,000 be included in this year's budget to buy an inflatable boat, two motors, boat trailer and scuba gear for a three-man unit which would provide "immediate response" to any marine emergency along 40 miles of Saanich coastline.

Fire Chief Harold Gains told the committee that although there are a number of marine rescue services now available in the Greater Victoria area, there is a delay in response time.

As an example, he cited an incident six weeks ago in which three youths whose rowboat overturned in Cadboro Bay were finally rescued by a private citizen one and a half hours after the capsizing occurred.

One was virtually unconscious from loss of body heat and two had to remain in hospital for two days.

Aldermen were told that the rescue was carried out by Mark Bowers, a grade 11 student at Mount Douglas senior secondary school, while Saanich police were attempting to launch a rowboat borrowed from nearby residents.

Said Gains: "It's an embarrassing and tragic situation when the people who have gone there to perform the rescue have to tramp up and down the beach looking for a dinghy to rescue them."

In the past seven years, he said, there have been 78 marine accidents in Saanich, including three drownings and 11 near-drownings.

Gains said the purchase of scuba equipment would allow the department to assist police in underwater searches and the recovery of bodies.

By using an inflatable boat, weighing about 245 pounds, the unit would be able to launch along many parts of the shoreline other than regular launching sites, and the chief estimated that the average response time would be around 15 minutes.

Several experienced boatmen and divers within the department have expressed interest in forming the rescue unit.

Gains said if Saanich adopts the program the costs may be subsidized by the B.C. Emergency Program.

Cook Events Listed

Events relating to the bicentenary of Captain James Cook's arrival in Nootka Sound are being held in Victoria this month.

On March 18, a Captain Cook Ball sponsored by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce will be held at The Empress.

On March 18-19, the Royal Scottish Country Dance Society will present dancing at the Garth Homer Achievement Centre, 813 Darwin, starting at 8 p.m.

And on March 25, 27, 30 and April 1, the Vancouver Island Opera Society will present the Beggar's Opera at McPherson Playhouse.

$75,000 Loss In Fire

Fire struck the Expresso Disco coffee house in Burnside Plaza twice within two hours Monday night.

The damage estimate ranges up to $75,000, mostly to the disco at 3454 Tillicum, but Saanich firemen report smoke damage to other shops in the row. A fire marshal's representative is investigating.

Firemen were called first at 11:13 p.m. after employees Debbie Soveko and Linda Wiltermuth turned on a gas-fired pizza oven to cook themselves some food as they were cleaning up at the end of the day. A pile of tablecloths, table and chair in front of the oven caught fire while the two were playing a pinball machine in the front part of the place.

Their attention was drawn by burning window curtains and when firefighters arrived the area around the oven was ablaze.

Satisifed with conditions after extinguishing the flames, firemen left about 11:50 and at 12:45 the shop was locked up by its owner, Chief Harold Gains said.

At 1:16 a.m. a passing police patrol noticed smoke coming from the building and firemen arrived to find the whole interior ablaze with the source centred behind a deep-freeze chest.

The property was insured, Gains said.

TOWN TALK

Television finally has recognized one of its largest single audiences — old people.

The CBC is planning a situation comedy about a quartet of elderly people, entitled Nellie, Daniel, Emma and Ben.

An early version was tried out in January, and got a very favorable public response. According to one report, it's about "a rebellious group of oldsters who set up a communal house after escaping from a prison-like home for the aged."

The 67th Western Scots will have their annual reunion dinner at 6:30 p.m. March 25 at the Dominion Hotel — and it will probably be the last.

"I'm about the youngest of the survivors," says Gordon Thomas of 139 Clarence St., Victoria. "Me and another fellow are both 80 years old. We're the young ones."

Thomas said there are only 30 known survivors of the 1,200 Western Scots who went overseas from Victoria during a snowstorm 62 years ago in March of 1916, with the blessing of then premier Sir Richard McBride.

Only 12 of the 30 live in Victoria and several live south of the border.

"We got 10 out to our reunion last year and I don't know how well we will do this time. Some of the fellows find it difficult to travel," Thomas said. "This may be our last reunion."

A Times reporter grateful for the anonymity of this column is still breaking out in occasional blushes from the recollection of an embarrassing experience at the University of Victoria's open-house weekend.

The incident occurred in the Cornett Building's so-called anechoic chamber, a weirdly silent room whose walls, floor and ceiling are lined with dense sheets of sound-absorbent insulation.

The sound-proofed room is used for various psychological experiments. Apparently some human guinea-pigs say they are almost driven nuts by the pervasive quietness.

"Make yourselves comfortable, keep still and listen," the UVic tour guide advised.

The visitors did so, and almost immediately heard an ominous rumbling, gurgling noise from the aforementioned reporter's stomach.

Fortunately for the red-faced fellow, the only other occupants of the room were his three children. But they piled discomfiture on his embarrassment by collapsing in near-hysterical laughter.

He walked out of there resolved to tell Uvic what it can do with its anechoic chamber.

Born in Ontario March 14, 1897, Winkler has lived in British Columbia since 1900, prospecting in the southern Oakanagan area before coming to Victoria in 1908.

He is an honorary life member of the Natural History Society of Victoria and of the British Columbia and Yukon Chamber of Mines.

He reported for mining publications. His latest book of poems is The Seance Syndicate and Other Poems.

Among those sending greetings were Minister of Mines and Petroleum Resources James Chabot, the Natural History Society of Victoria and the Victoria branch of the United Nations Association in Canada.

You could call it a pubtail lounge but the provincial government refers to it as a split.

Under legislation proclaimed in 1977 hotel owners can divide their pubs in half, turning one section into a cocktail lounge.

This was the compromise agreed on after the B.C. Hotels Association campaigned for the right to sell hard liquor in beer parlors.

The first split in Victoria opened today, at the King's Hotel, which is run by Frank Burger, immediate past president of the B.C. Hotels Association. The pub had 205 seats but now 125 seats, the maximum, have been converted to a cocktail lounge, with the remaining 80 seats being a beer parlor.

Camp Follower In There Pitching

The old political trick of planting a sympathizer in the audience to throw a loaded question took on a new twist in Oak Bay on Monday.

The well-dressed lady in the wide-brimmed black hat jumped to her feet and asked NDP candidate Bennett Camp how his party would solve the Quebec problem.

The 47-year-old Camp provided a fairly standard reply and then added: "Thanks, Mom."

Get Together, Airlines Told

A Vancouver airline company that wants to start a new float plane service between Victoria, the Gulf Islands and Vancouver Harbor was told by the city today to go and talk to the competition.

West Coast Air Services Ltd. requested in a letter that it be allowed to operate Twin-Otters out of the Inner Harbor in much the same manner as AirWest.

West Coast told city council's planning and zoning committee that "in order to control and manage the air service requirements (in the Inner Harbor), they should all operate from a central area and preferably from a common terminal facility."

The committee agreed that the idea of a shared facility was a good one — but said that's something for AirWest and West Coast to work out themselves. It suggested the airlines get together and then come back to the city with a proposal.

AirWest is negotiating with the city to lease peoperty on a short-term basis to enable the company to move its facilities across the harbor to the old Ocean Cement site.
